City's Rejection Of New Arterial Could Be Costly

By LYNN MULVANEY
and
HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Rejection of the proposed Ulster Arterial could cost the city of Kingston a million dollars and delay further the completion of the Broadway East Urban Renewal Project.

The urban renewal agency has supplied Mayor Francis R. Koenig with a report, at his request, on the credit system in Broadway East and an answer to his question of "What will it cost the city if the new road is rejected?"

The cost has been pegged at $911,585 in cash that the city will have to put up as its share of its urban renewal debt in Broadway East. If the road goes through, according to the agency report, filed on July 7, the city would wind up with more than $700,000 in excess credits which could be used to pay the city's share of the Uptown Project or be applied towards future city urban renewal projects such as Broadway West which has been in the talking stage for several years.

The other side of the coin is that the new road will take some 90 properties including 50 dwellings along its right of way which crosses a new bridge over the Rondout near the present site of the Miron Lumber Company, continues up hill to an interchange at Delaware Avenue and out to Route 32 in the Town of Ulster.

Sources at city hall indicate that the assesssed value of those 90 properties is approximately $170,000.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig has not taken a public position on the new road but is said to be highly concerned about the city's rising debt which stands to increase by two million dollars even without the possibility of the need for more money for the urban renewal program.

The price tag on the new city hall in Broadway east is in excess of $900,000. Construction on that began on June 1 but there still has been no official word from city hall on how the city is paying for the building. either with short term notes or long term bond issues.

In addition, the city is obligated to pay more than a million dollars toward the state-mandated construction of a secondary sewage treatment plant on The Strand. Yesterday, a joint news release from Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. and Senator Charles Goodell announced that the federal share of the project, $742,000, had been appropriated by the Water Quality Administration of the Department of the Interior. The total cost has been pegged at $2,473,500 with the state and federal government paying 30 per cent each and the city paying 40 per cent. State funds have already been approved. The city has yet to take action on appropriating its share.

Fish was in town on Friday to meet with Mayor Koenig and a number of residents living along the right of way of the new road to discuss the problem.

Mrs. Marie Heitzman, a resident of 64 Moore Street, which is in the right of way, requested the meeting with Fish. Other residents included Joseph Kelly of 256 Hasbrouck Avenue, Mrs. Harry Studt of 68 Moore Street, Charles Schulenberg of 601 Delaware Avenue and Adelaide Falatyn of 12 Cottage Row. All were strongly opposed to the arterial.

The mayor and the congressman reportedly explained that plans for the arterial originated from the State Department of Transportation and would have been carried

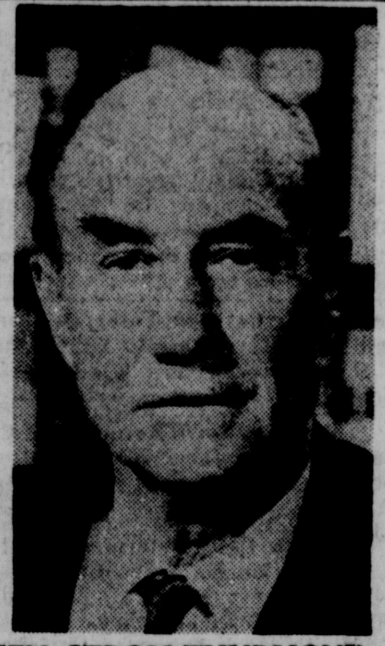
Over School Desegregation

Thurmond Condemns Nixon



SEN. STROM THURMOND

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., has warned President Nixon the voters may drive him out of the White House unless he stops listening to the "liberal advisors" around him and drops the "philosophy of the Northeast" in his school desegregation policy.

Thurmond, the southern playmaker in Nixon's presidential campaign, took the Senate floor Friday to denounce the President's post-election school integration policy—specifically Nixon's action to end the tax-exempt status of private white schools and his plan to send 100 desegregation officers into the South.

"I condemn these actions; I strongly condemn them; without end I condemn them. They are wrong as social policy and they are wrong as law," Thurmond said. "This is the sort of program which we would expect to get from a Democratic administration."

He said the tax move against private schools was "vindictive" and would drive such schools out of business. He said the Justice Department enforcers being sent into the South amounted to an invasion by "100 carpetbagging lawyers."

With more emotion in his words than his voice, Thurmond read the speech Friday to a Senate chamber deserted except for one other senator on the floor. The galleries were about half full and Thurmond's 23-year-old wife, Nancy, watched from the VIP gallery.

"I am warning the administration—I repeat, I am warning the Nixon administration today—that the people of the South and the people of the nation will not support such unreasonable policies," Thurmond said.

"I remind the chief executive that the presidency is an elective office, and that what the people give, the people can also take away."

Thurmond was credited with building Nixon's "Southern strategy"—a loosely defined attempt to soft peddle the federal role in school desegregation policies. But Thurmond Friday accused Nixon of "a breach of faith with the people of the South."

"I can only conclude that a group of liberal advisors around the President are misleading him, and that their advice will bring disruption to this nation," he said.

"The philosophy which these people espouse and which they give to the President is a sectional philosophy—the philosophy of the Northeast," Thurmond said. "It is not the philosophy of the South or of the West or of the Midwest.

"Those who support the philosophy of the Northeast did not support the President in 1968, and they will not support him in 1972."

Westchester Music Student... Miss New York State

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP) — Katherine Jean Karlsrud, 18, a statuesque music student from Mamaroneck who competed as Miss Westchester, is the new Miss New York State.

Miss Karlrud, a 5-foot-9, 135-pound brunette, won the right Friday night to represent the Empire State in the Miss America Pageant in September at Atlantic City, N.J.

She received her crown from the outgoing state queen, Linda Marie Trybus of the Buffalo suburb of Snyder, before an audience of 1,200 in Olean Senior High School and thousands of others who saw the proceeding over a statewide television hookup.

Miss Ulster County of 1970, Ruth McGeeney, 21, of Glenerie Lake Park, was chosen Miss Congeniality by the 21 other contestants at the state pageant.

The five-foot seven-inch blue-eyed redhead received a cup and a $200 scholarship at an awards breakfast today.

Miss McGeeney, whose foster parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Hannifan of Hurley, was also chosen Miss Congeniality in the Miss Ulster County Pageant held last August. She carried number 6 in the state pageant, which was the same number she carried in the Miss Ulster County Pageant.

Miss McGeeney is a 1966 graduate of Kingston High School, and attended Ulster County Community College.

Attending the state pageant with Miss McGeeney were her chaperone, Mrs. Laura Buono; Ulster County Pageant business director, Richard Aguanno, and Robert Schnell, executive director of the Miss Ulster County Pageant.

Miss Karlsrud, who has blue-green eyes and measures 38-25-37, kept her tears in check as she walked down the runway in the auditorium to acknowledge the audience's applause.

At the end of the platform, she bent down to greet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Karlsrud.

Named first runner-up by the judges was Joan A. Burachio, a Barnard College senior who competed as Miss Staten Island.

Miss Burachio, whose home is in Atlantic City, has attended every Miss American pageant as a spectator since the age of two.

Miss Karlsrud is a sophomore harp major at the Manhattan School of Music and comes from a musically inclined family.

Miss Karlsrud won a talent preliminary contest Thursday night with a harp rendition of "Whirlwind" by Saldos and repeated the selection in Friday night's finals.

But, she said modestly, "My music teacher is really going to be after me to practice after what she heard on TV tonight."

With her crown, Miss Karlsrud received a $2,000 wardrobe, a $1,500 scholarship, a selection of jewelry, use of an automobile during her year's reign and expenses for the Miss America pageant.

Before Friday night's closing competition got under way, the field of 22 contestants was pared to 10 semi-finalists.

The Karlsrud family home is at 948 The Parkway.

Chicago North Side

Two Policemen Killed by Sniper

CHICAGO (UPI)—Two policemen responding to the sound of gunfire from a North Side public housing project were shot and killed Friday as they walked across a grassy field.

Police swarmed into the area and sealed off the building from which the shots were thought to have come. A special "sniper squad" of policemen conducted a room-by-room search of nearly every apartment in the 20-story building but found no suspects.

A 19-year-old youth, a resident of the project, was shot in the leg, apparently by the same sniper.

Residents of the apartment, one of the Mother Cabrini Homes project buildings, near the Old Town night life area, were not allowed to enter their apartments while police searched.

A neighbor said police were "kicking down the doors" as they moved through the building.

A woman who said she was a resident of the suspect apartments stood holding her baby in her arms. She said she had been waiting for more than three hours to enter her home and feed the infant.

The two dead officers were identified as Sgt. James Severin, 38, and Patrolman Anthony Rizzato, 37. The two men were assigned to the "Walk and Talk Program," aimed at better relations between police and residents of the project.

Police said the two were cut down, apparently by sniper fire from an upper floor of the building, as they walked across a field used by youngsters for a baseball diamond.

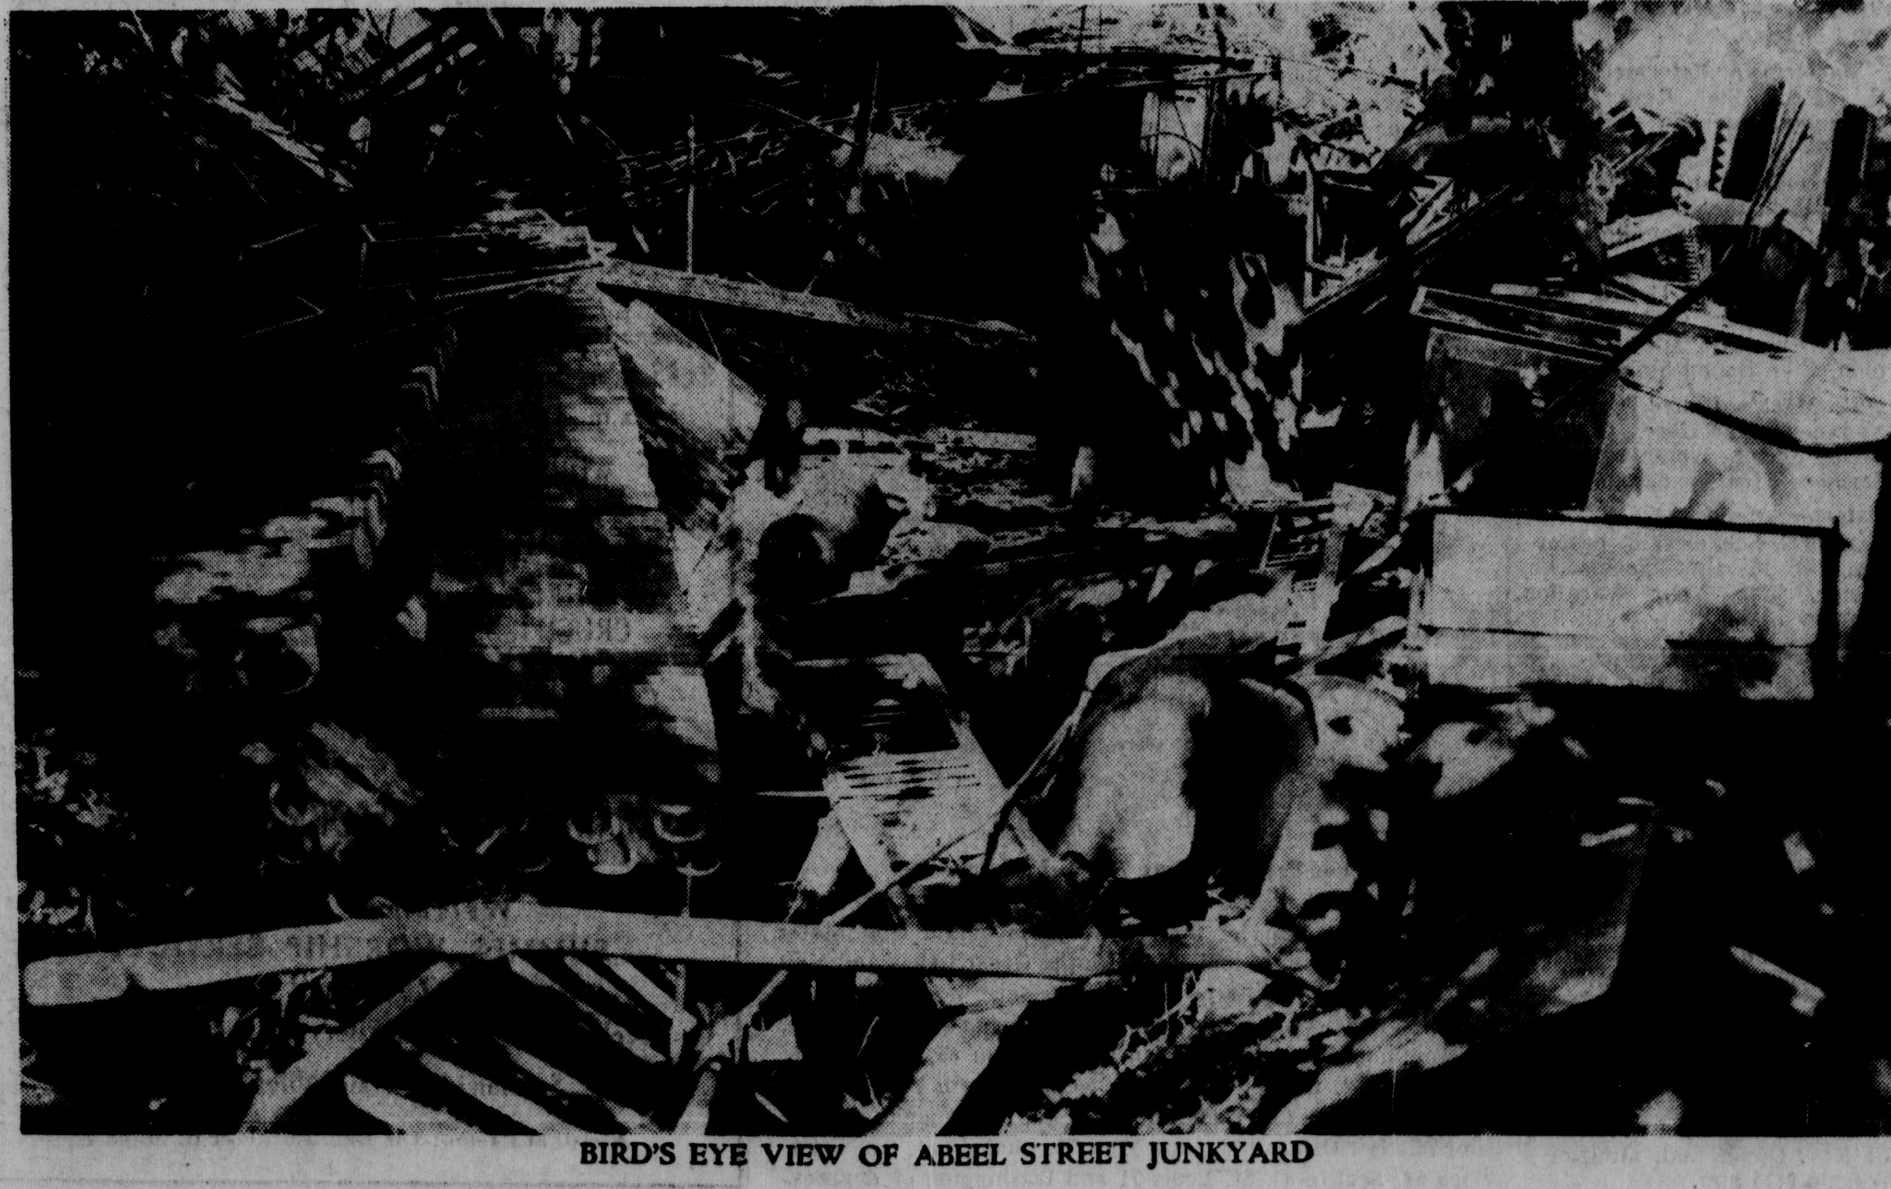
Chicago Police Supt. James Conlisk, in a news conference early today, said the two policemen were "murdered in cold blood, without provocation, confrontation or probable reason."

Hundreds of police poured into the area, but officers who tried to remove the bodies of the wounded men repeatedly were driven back by gunfire from the building.

Squad cars finally surrounded the bodies on the field. It took three attempts by police to get the victims into a car and off to a hospital.

Patrolman Jerry Yedlinski, who came to the aid of the fatally wounded officers, said the men had not drawn their service revolvers. "They didn't even get a chance to shoot back," he said.

The scrawled notes of a pretty California teen-ager were the main leads in the search for the man who killed her roommate in a Chicago hotel. Story on page 14.



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF ABEEL STREET JUNKYARD

Zoning Ordinance In City Has Teeth

KINGSTON

Two city junkyard owners found out Friday morning that the city's zoning ordinance has teeth which could cost them a big chunk of money and/or time in jail if they don't comply.

Andy Buzzanco, 57 of Abeel Street and William Martin, 56, of West Chestnut Street were found guilty in trial before City Judge Hubert A. Richter of violating the city's zoning ordinance: operating a junkyard in the city limits. The junkyard in question is located across the street from Block Park on Abeel Street.

The case was brought by City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe on June 26. The city was represented by its Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein. Buzzanco and Martin were represented by Joseph Avis.

The sentence by Judge Richter provides for the orderly cleanup of the junkyard but also provides for severe penalties if the owners fail to comply.

Richter sentenced each man to a $100 fine and 30 days in jail for every day of non-compliance retroactive to when Radcliffe first served the papers on them June 26. At the time of yesterday's sentencing, 21 days had passed since papers were served making Buzzanco and Martin liable for more than $2,000 in fines and more than a year in jail each.

While the sentence may appear harsh, at first, City Building Inspector Radcliffe pointed out that Buzzanco has been warned repeatedly to clear up the junkyard. "We've had complaints for years from the neighbors," Radcliffe said. "I've been down there personally on several occasions trying to reason with the man. We don't like to take a man to court, but if we have to, we will."

Under the terms of the sentence from Judge Richter, Buzzanco and Martin can avoid paying the fines and/or serving the time if they comply with a time schedule set up by the judge and the building department.

The pair have until July 24 to ger rid of a number of antique cars. They will report back on the 24th and be given further orders on the cleanup. Racliffe estimates that it will take a month to six weeks for the final cleanup.

Clustering Concept Works for Churches

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Clustering, you may have thought, is something grapes do.

But it also is something churches do. When done properly, it can yield remarkably good results.

Clustering is the term churchmen have coined for arrangements in which several local churches, of the same denomination or different denominations, enter into a working alliance.

Each congregation continues to maintain its separate identity and conduct its own worship services as it always has done.

But the cooperating churches pool their resources to do a better job in some traditional fields of activity, such as youth work, and to embark on new forms of ministry and service to the community which none of them could provide alone.

For example, instead of each congregation having a youth group, the cluster may bring all of its young people into a single strong organization, which can offer a broader and more attractive program of weekly meetings, retreats, camping trips, etc., than any one church could possible sustain.

Similarly, women's associations of the several congregations may conduct joint programs of study and service.

These are traditional church activities, and the effect of clustering on them is simply to improve their quality.

But clustering also makes it possible for cooperating churches to venture into new fields and reach people who aren't much interested in traditional church activities.

For example, a cluster may operate a coffee house or drop-in center for college students. It may sponsor a draft counseling center, a day-care service for children of working mothers, or remedial reading classes for disadvantaged youngsters who are falling behind in school.

The cost of any of those activities, in money and volunteer manpower, could be more than one congregation could handle, but well within the reach of half a dozen churches working together.

Two major Protestant denominations, the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church, have been actively pushing the cluster concept during the past year, and are encouraged by the practical results.

To give further impetus to the movement, they have jointly issued a 21-page pamphlet entitled "Guidelines for the Development of Local Church Clusters." Copies are being distributed to all clergymen in both denominations. Any other pastor or layman interested in the idea may obtain a copy from the headquarters of either denomination for a quarter.

Woman Pastor Ordained, Serves Phoenicia Churches

PHOENICIA

The Rev. Bonnie L. Jones, who has been pastor of the United Methodist Churches of Phoenicia, Lanesville, and Willow-Shady since June of 1969, was ordained an elder and received full membership in the New York Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church recently.

The ceremony was held at the United Congregational Church, Bridgeport, Conn., with Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke and Bishop Love conducting the ordination.

The Rev. Miss Jones was sponsored by the Rev. Richard Markham of Connecticut and her father, the Rev. Harold Jones of Floral Park, L. I.

Before coming to Phoenicia, the Rev. Miss Jones was assistant College Chaplain at Drew College from 1967 to 1969 and was graduated from Drew Theological School in 1969 with a Bachelor of Divinity degree. In 1963, she received her BA from Adelphi University. Since coming to the area, the Rev. Miss Jones has been very active with youth groups in addition to her duties in her three churches.

Local Sites Inspire Baptist Series

KINGSTON

Bricks, Caves and Water Reservoirs are the "seed thoughts" for a series of summer sermons preached by the Rev. Norman F. Blosat of the First Baptist Church beginning last Sunday. The series is a result of observations made by the Rev. Mr. Blosat as he became acquainted with the Kingston area since his move here in January.

The above subjects are sermon starters as he correlates his Kingston learning experiences with Biblical narrative and in turn relates the theme to practical everyday living.

Last Sunday's message originated at the site of a former brick plant on the Hudson River as he preached on Pharoah's words in Exodus, Who is the Lord that I should heed His voice?

This Sunday's sermon, Man Finds God in a Cave got its start with a visit to the New York Underground facilities.

Next Sunday, July 26, Ashokan Reservoir was the source of inspiration for the sermon, God's Reservoirs.

Karl Wallenda Ready For Walk Across Gorge

TULLULAH FALLS, Ga. (AP) — "You can give me $1 million but I am still going to walk that wire," Karl Wallenda said as he prepared to walk a slender cable across a long, deep gorge today.

Wallenda, ruling member of one of circusdom's most famous families, said Friday he is making the walk because he wants to do something greater than has ever been done before.

He told newsmen he would stretch the distance of his walk to 1,100 feet by crossing over two catwalks at both ends of the cable and down to where one end is anchored in the bedrock of this northeast Georgia community of 300 persons.

The gorge drops more than 700 feet to a small, bolder-strewn creek at the point of his crossing.

Wallenda, 65, was told the record books show that alonger walk was made over Niagra Falls in the late 19th century, but he disputed the record book and said he had viewed the scene of that crossing. "It couldn't have been over 600 feet or so," he said.

"This is going to be a great feat. It will be a world's record," he said of his walk, which is launching a fund drive for building an amphitheater on the rim of the gorge.

Thousands of persons poured into this resort of the past century to watch the 40-minute walk.

Kingston Man Struck by Car

KINGSTON

A 71-year-old Kingston man escaped serious injury late Friday afternoon after he was struck by a car while crossing Broadway between Henry and VanDeusen Streets in the city, according to Kingston city police officials.

Herman Flamm of 87 Northfield Street, according to police, was taken to Kingston Hospital with head injuries. His condition was reported as good this morning by hospital officials.

Police stated that Flamm walked into the street from between two parked cars about 40 feet west of Henry Street. He was struck by an auto operated by Robert Jones, 41, of 2 Hilton Place, Kingston. Jones told police that he had stopped for a traffic light at the intersection of Broadway and VanDeusen Street. He added that he continued to proceed east on Broadway when the light changed and that Flamm walked into the path of his vehicle about 40 feet beyond the intersection. The auto, it was reported, was traveling at a slow rate of speed when the accident occurred.

No summonses were issued as a result of the incident.

Massive Operation in South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces pushed ahead with a massive operation in the northern part of South Vietnam today amid signs that the South Vietnamese troops might be preparing for a thrust into Laos.

The joint initiative, including an operation by 1,500 U.S. Marines, is aimed at disrupting North Vietnamese base camps, staging areas and war stockpiles in an effort to preempt an enemy offensive. It began Thursday but was not announced until today for security reasons.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. Army chief of staff, said earlier this week after a tour of the war zone that the Communist command had the capability of launching a major offensive in the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

The joint assault, involving nearly 10,000 allied troops, centered in jungle mountains 30 to 50 miles south of Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city. Some troops advanced to within striking distance of Laos; one forward base was at Kham Duc, 13 miles from the border.

U.S. B52 bombers have been concentrating heavy bombing raids along the Laotian frontier over the past week. These raids, combined with movements of artillery guns, indicated that the South Vietnamese forces might be preparing to extend their part of the drive into Laos. In the past, heavy bombing raids have frequently been tipoffs of impending infantry strikes.

Officers said the allied forces were meeting little resistance in their assault. In the only fighting reported, U.S. Marines killed five North Vietnamese Friday while suffering no casualties of their own.

The Marines were operating with South Vietnamese marines, rangers and infantrymen 30 miles south of Da Nang in a region described by one source as a "historically enemy base area."

Scattered fighting was reported today in the southern half of South Vietnam and in Cambodia.

North Vietnamese troops killed four Americans of the 1st Air Cavalry Division and wounded seven Friday in a brief fight three miles southeast of the Cambodian border and 95 miles northeast of Saigon. Enemy losses were not known, but Command said: "We came off second best in the engagement, I'll grant you that."

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that 71 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in the U Min forest, a long-time enemy staging area 128 miles southwest of Saigon. A spokesman said most of the enemy were killed by air and artillery strikes. The South Vietnamese forces suffered 15 men wounded but none killed.

In Cambodia, fighting continued until dawn today at the U.S.-built munitions depot in Long Vek, 21 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. A spokesman said the Viet Cong were unable to capture the depot, but he gave no other details of the fighting.

The spokesman, Maj. Am Rong, also announced for the first time that American B52 bombers were being used to hit North Vietnamese troops concentrations in his country. Sources in Cambodia said the strikes had been under way for more than a week, but their location was not disclosed and it was not known whether they were related to the raids being flown along the Laotian frontier. The U.S. Command in Saigon has been routinely announcing bombing missions in Cambodia for the past 2½ months.

Soviet Union Declaration Is Denounced by Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban has denounced a declaration by the Soviet Union that it will increase its political, economic and military support of Egypt to counter "aggression" by Israel.

Eban said Friday that the Soviet announcement, issued as a communique by the Moscow news agency Tass, contained nothing new and "clearly shows the enmity the Soviet Union harbors against Israel."

"It seems to be clear that the Soviet Union is not set on the course for peace," he said.

The announcement, made at the conclusion of 19 days of talks in Moscow between Egyptian President Gamel Abdel Nasser and Soviet leaders, charged that Israel's "aggressive, expansionist policy became possible only as a result of invariable support by imperialist quarters, first of all the United States."

The communique blamed the Middle East crisis on "unceasing armed attacks" by Israel, and it ignored the recent U.S. proposal for a three-month cease-fire and indirect talks between negotiations between the Arabs and Israelis.

It called for "adoption of urgent measures to stop Israel's armed attacks against Arab countries, to withdraw Israeli troops from all occupied Arab territories in accordance with the principle of nonacquisition of territories as a result of war and the fulfillment in full volume of the Nov. 22, 1967, decisions of the U.N. Security Council, as well as decisions of the United Nations organizations on questions of Palestinian refugees."

The document also called for "unity of action of all the Arab countries and peoples against the forces of imperialism and its supporters that are hostile to them."

During his stay in Moscow, Nasser conferred with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikola V. Podgorny. Tass said the three Soviet leaders accepted an invitation to visit Egypt, but a date was not announced.

Israeli warplanes pounded Arab guerrilla positions in Lebanon today, while on the Jordanian front the Israelis reported killing three Arab irregulars in a clash 23 miles north of the Dead Sea.

In Jordan, the Palestinian version of the clash said four guerrillas, one an officer, were killed.

The announcement said the guerrillas inflicted heavy casualties and material damage on the Israel's several attacks on border settlements and military positions in Upper Galilee and on the occupied Golan Heights of Jordan.

In the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip, a guerrilla grenade exploded near a crowd on a busy street in Gaza City, wounding 29 Arabs, the Israelis reported. The casualties included a pregnant woman who gave birth prematurely after the explosion. She was in serious condition but the child was reported healthy.

Guerrillas of the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine carried out 220 successful operations against Israel during the first half of 1970, the front's weekly newspaper Alhadaf reported in Beirut, Lebanon.

These operations were in addition to "strikes against American interests elsewhere," and they resulted in the killing or wounding of 1,520 Israeli officers and soldiers, the paper claimed.

It said the most important operations including the blowing up last April 21 of a residential building on the Mediterranean in Tel Aviv. "A large number" of Phantom pilots who live in the building were killed or wounded in the explosion, it said.

The front said it "executed" 15 Israeli intelligence officers and Arab agents in the same period.

The front's losses in the same period were 27 guerrillas killed and three wounded, the paper said.

Molotov Cocktail Case Goes to Grand Jury

KINGSTON

Accused of tossing a molotov cocktails at a house located at 170 Ten Broeck Avenue and causing a small fire, 48-year-old Leo E. Selzer of 168 Downs Street, was remanded to the county jail Friday pending grand jury action.

Selzer faces charges of first degree arson and reckless endangerment.

The hearing was conducted by City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Authorities charged that late on the night of July 10, the defendant allegedly threw two molotov cocktails into a front porch of the home of Edward and Margaret Banks at the Ten Broeck address. The cocktails exploded and set fire to the roof.

Minor damage to roof resulted as firefighters made a fast run to the scene and extinguished the blaze.

The arson charge was based on the molotov cocktail that exploded and set the fire to the residence that was occupied at the time. The reckless endangerment count stemmed from the other device.

It was explained that if the arterial is not constructed and financially aided through state and federal government, the city will be required to build a major highway in connection with the urban renewal project at its own expense.

Fish and Koenig plan a tour of the right of way next Friday morning.

Before that, Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward) will hold a meeting of the Urban Renewal Committee which he chairs, at city hall. Speaking of that meeting, set for Wednesday at 7:30, Sinsabugh said, "We just want to get the facts. There's been a lot of conflicting stories about this road."

Sinsabaugh said he intends to request a meeting of the entire council, the mayor, alderman-at-large, the entire urban renewal agency with its attorney and the city corporation council.

The press will be invited. "We want the truth," Sinsabugh said, "and we want it out in the open."

Katrine Woman Listed Fair

LAKE KATRINE

Virginia Plonski, 23, of Old Kings Highway, Lake Katrine, is in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital after she was injured in a one-car crash on Old Kings Highway early Saturday morning.

According to Ulster County Sheriff's Deputies, Miss Plonski was proceeding north on Old Kings Highway at about 3 a.m. today when her auto apparently went out of control and left the right side of the highway, striking a clump of trees.

Shortly after 3 a.m, Sheriff's Department officials received a call from two unidentified boys who discovered the accident. Deputies were dispatched to the scene where they found Miss Plonski lying unconscious about 25 feet from the wreckage of her auto. She was later rushed to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance.

Police were unable to provide complete details of the accident. They reported, however, that the woman did sustain apparent cerebral concussions in the crash.

Administration Approves Another Million for Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, expressing pessimism over a negotiated settlement in Paris, has disclosed Nixon administration approval of an additional $1 million military aid for Cambodia.

Nixon earlier announced that a $7.9 million allocation to Cambodia had reduced the U.S. military assistance program balance to zero.

But administration officials discovered another $1 million in the 1969-70 fiscal budget, the department said Friday, and ordered the funds given to Cambodia.

On the Paris peace talks, U. Alexis Johnson, undersecretary of state, said chances for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam conflict are dim.

He said the enemy position has greatly deteriorated in the past year, but added, "I frankly do not see any signs at the present time of the other side being willing to negotiate the peace."

He made the statement in a Voice of America interview.

The State Department also squelched rumors Russia had ventured a proposal to start a new conference aimed at ending the Indochina conflict.

Reports had circulated to this effect in New Delhi during the recent visit by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Nikolai P. Firyubin with Indian Prime Minister Indira Ghandi. Press Officer Carl Bartch said the New Delhi embassy found nothing to substantiate the reports.

Bartch said more Cambodian aid is planned for the new fiscal year, but the amount has not been determined.

Johnson also touched on the U.S. troop reduction in South Korea, saying it "can be carried out without increasing the threat to Korea." He added the U.S. has no intention of totally withdrawing from Asia.

In addition, he said, he was encouraged by Cambodia's new regime.

"The Communists have not succeeded in doing anything in Cambodia except harassing," and "the Cambodian government is resisting very effectively."

Woman Held In $2,500 Bail

WEST HURLEY

A 25-year-old New Jersey woman was arrested by Kingston State Police late Friday night and charged with possession of a stolen vehicle at the intersection of Routes 28 and 375 in West Hurley, according to troopers from the Lake Katrine barracks.

Frances Myrtle Wvisbaum of Union City was reportedly operating a late model sedan that had been reported stolen from an area in Brooklyn on June 19.

The woman was arraigned before Town of Kingston Justice Robert T. Ferrigan on a charge of possession of stolen property, first degree. She was committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail pending a court appearence July 22.

Trooper D. J. Pitcher investigated.

Federal Group Plans Meeting

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, which has entered the current pro football hassle at the request of John Mackey, has asked for a meeting between the National Football League owners and the Players Association in Washington, D.C., next Wednesday.

Mackey, president of the Players Association, asked the Service on Thursday to offer its help in solving the disputes between the owners and the players. The meeting has been called for 7 p.m. EDT.

"We will be there and are sincerely hoping the owners will be present to make good-faith efforts to reach agreements," Mackey said in a statement. "We have now and have always been prepared to cooperate to the fullest to bring this matter to a prompt, fair and equitable settlement in the interests of all

Prison Brutality Disturbs Probers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators are deeply disturbed over reported brutality in South Vietnamese prisons and plan to look at American aid programs involving prisons in other countries as well, Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said today.

Moss, who heads a House foreign operations subcommittee, told newsmen he received reports of brutality in some Latin American prisons assisted by U.S. funds. He said the panel would investigate these reports when the South Vietnam inquiry is finished.

More than $110 million in U.S. aid has gone to South Vietnam's police and penal system. It has become a subject of controversy since Reps. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., and William R. Anderson, D-Tenn., reported finding 500 political prisoners, some held in so-called "tiger cages," at Con Son prison in South Vietnam.

At subcommittee hearings Friday, Moss both expressed concern over Con Son and issued a "challenge" to North Vietnam to halt inhuman treatment of U.S. war prisoners. "Let us both clean our houses," he said.

It was also learned Friday that about 145 House members have signed a letter to North Vietnam President Pham Van Dong, accusing Hanoi of disregarding "basic standards of human decency and morality" in its treatment of U.S. prisoners. Rep. Roger H. Zion, R-Ind., wrote the letter and hopes to get more signatures next week.

Anderson told the subcommittee that U.S. aid to South Vietnam prisons is "one of the most poorly managed and counterproductive foreign aid programs ever carried out by this nation."

Conditions at Con Son, he said, are only part of "a much larger, very ugly picture."

Dr. Marjorie Nelson, of New Haven, Conn., who formerly worked at the Quang Ngai civilian prison in Vietnam, testified she treated prisoners who were beaten and tortured with electricity at an interrogation center set up with U.S. aid.

Powelton Swinger Leads Play at Wiltwyck

KINGSTON

Chuck Thompson, a beautiful swinging 2-handicap player out of Powelton (Newburgh) fired an even-par 72 to qualify as medalist in the Championship Flight of the annual Wiltwyck Country Club Invitational Friday.

Thompson, who edged Dutchess Golf and Country Club champion, George Pacheco, by one stroke, carded nines of 33 and 39. Pacheco put together 37-36-73 to finish a stroke ahead of Leon Randall of the host club, tournament favorite. Randall posted 38-36-74 despite some putting troubles.

Bruce Simmons of Dutchess and former champion Harvey Bostic of Wiltwyck, who also had putting troubles, tied with John Esterbrook of Powelton with 75s.

Thompson birdied three holes on the front nine and had five pars for his 33 then went three over on the back nine.

Bud Leininger, a former Wiltwyck stalwart now playing out of Rockledge Country Club in Cocoa, Fla., won a three-way sudden playoff for the 16th spot in the Championship Flight. A par-4 on the first extra hole enabled Leininger to edge A. J. Maneen of Wiltwyck and Chauncey Maggiacomo of Dutchess after the trio had tied with 79s.

The qualifiers:

SAY-HEY HITS ANOTHER!—Bobby Bonds (25) and Ron Hunt (33) await Willie Mays to cross home plate after the latter cracked his 20th homer of the season and 2,999th of his major league career in the eighth inning last night. Bonds and Hunt were on base when the hit came. Watching the Giants' star crossing home are Montreal's catcher John Bateman and umpire Ed Sudol. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Dodgers Defeat Mets

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Wes Parker hit a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 10th inning Friday night to score Manny Mota with the run that gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 win over the New York Mets who took their fifth straight loss.

Don Sutton went all the way for the Dodgers, striking out 12 men and giving up only five hits.

Tom Seaver, seeking his 15th victory, went nine innings, struck out 10 and also allowed five hits but did not figure in the decision.

The loss went to relief pitcher Tug McGraw, now 1-3, who faced the Dodgers in the 10th.

Pinchhitter Mota, the first man to face McGraw, singled to right and was sacrificed to second by Sutton. Billy Grabarkewitz was walked intentionally and Willie Davis beat out an infield hit, loading the bases.

Then Parker got his third single of the game to drive in the winning run. The Mets had lost three games before the All-Star break and since then have lost two to the Dodgers.

The only man to have any success against Sutton was Joe Foy who got three of the five hits off the slender Dodgers righthander. Foy got his third single in the top of the 10th with two out, then stole second and took third when catcher Tom Haller's throw went wild into centerfield. Sutton walked Jerry Grote intentionally to fill first base and struck out pinchhitter Dave Marshall to end the inning.

Seaver from the fourth through the eighth inning turned back 15 men in order. In the ninth he got into trouble when the Dodgers got two men on but he got pinchhitter Maury Wills for his 10th strikeout to stifle that threat.

Seaver was guilty of poor baserunning that possibly cost the Mets a run in the fifth inning. With Foy on first, the pitcher rapped a single to center and tried to stretch it into a double but was thrown out by a yard or more.

Blefary Smacks 100th

NEW YORK (UPI)—Curt Blefary hit the 100th homer of his career with one on in the fourth inning to climax a four-run rally which paced the New York Yankees to a 7-1 victory over the Oakland Athletics Friday night behind Mel Stottlemyre's eight-hitter.

Jim Hunter shut out the Yankees on one hit for the first three innings but Thurman Munson opened the fourth with a single. He was erased trying to reach third on Bobby Murcer's single but Murcer took second on the throw and went to third when Roy White flied out.

Danny Cater singled home the tying run and Pete Ward's line drive took a bad hop past center fielder Rick Monday for a triple that drove in another run before Blefary hit an 0-2 pitch into the right field stands for his two-run homer. It was his sixth homer of the season.

The Yankees added three runs off Bob Locker in the eighth inning on Horace Clarke's two-run double and a run-producing single by Munson.

Stottlemyre, who hadn't won since June 21, yielded a run in the first inning on a single by Rick Monday, a force out by Reggie Jackson, a wild pitch and Danny Cater's throwing error.

Stottlemyre struck out three and walked one in raising his record to 9-8 while Hunter suffered his eighth defeat against 13 wins.

Clemente Paces Pirates

By United Press International

Roberto Clemente snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning by slamming a 400-foot homer as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3, Friday night for their first victory in Three Rivers Stadium.

The Pittsburgh right fielder then preserved the victory in the ninth by throwing out the potential tying run at the plate with one out. Clemente tied the score 3-3 in he sixth when he tripled and came home on Al Oliver's sacrifice fly. Manny Sanguillen's two-run homer in the fourth accounted for the other Pirate runs. Dave Giusti won his eighth game without a loss for the Pirates and Wayne Simpson, 13-2, suffered his first defeat for the Reds after reeling off 11 straight wins.

Richie Allen drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a double as the St. Louis Cardinals snapped their eight-game losing streak with an 11-6 triumph over the Atlanta Braves. Allen hit his 26th homer with Julian Javier and Carl Taylor aboard in the first inning and doubled home one of three runs in the third inning. Hank Aaron drove in three of Atlanta's runs with a sacrifice fly and a two-run homer.

Bob Watson's two-run single and Hector Torres' three-run triple highlighted a five-run sixth inning that gave the Houston Astros a 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Larry Dierker earned his first victory since May 18 and his ninth of the season.

Don Money hit two home runs and Rick Wise went the distance although he allowed 12 hits as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres, 8-3. Clarence Gaston hit a homer for the Padres. Wise, who struck out nine, posted his seventh victory against as many defeats.

Mack Jones hit two solo homers to give the Montreal Expos a 7-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants despite Willie Mays' 2,999th hit—a three-run homer. Claude Raymond had to finish up for winning pitcher Carl Morton after Mays hit his homer in the eighth. It was the 620th of his career.

Wes Parker hit a bases-loaded single in the 10th inning off reliever Tug McGraw to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets, who've now lost five straight. Don Sutton pitched a five-hitter to get the win. All-Star game starter Tom Seaver went the first nine innings for the Mets and allowed five hits.

Casper Has Stroke Advantage

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—At 39, Billy Casper, who takes a one stroke lead into today's third round of the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic, is not exactly a senior citizen but he thinks he may be improving with age.

Casper, this year's Master's champion, played his usual unruffled game Friday to card a five-under par 67 and a 135 total, nine under par, for the slim lead over Charles Coody at the halfway mark of the 72-hold tourney at the suburban Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

While Casper improved on his open round score of 68 by one stroke, Coody, who broke a five-year victory drought with a win at the Cleveland Open last year, shot his second straight 68 to stay near the top with a 136 total.

PGA champion Ray Floyd also had a 68 over the 6,708-yard course to deadlock at 137 with Bob Murphy, the 1968 winner here. Murphy had started the day tied for the lead with Labron Harris and Don Massengale.

Another stroke back at 138 were Australia's Bruce Crampton and former Georgia Tech football star Bunky Henry.

Bert Yancey, a former Philadelphia area pro, joined Larry Hinson and Jack Harden at 139 while Frank Beard, Pete Brown and Dave Marr were at 140.

Harris and Massengale slipped to two over par 74's to join eight others at 141, including localite Bill Hyndman, the only amateur in the field, and defending champion Dave Hill.

Both Casper and Coody scored eagles during their sub-par rounds of play under pleasant sunny skies and breezy weather.

Casper's eagle came on the par five fifth hole, 475-yards long, when he hit his second shot, a two-iron, on the green 40 feet away from the pin and sank the putt.

Coody's was on the par-five 17th hole, also 475 yards in length, when he blasted his three-iron second shot out of the right rough and plunked it on the green, 15 feet away and made the putt.

Casper had four birdies and only one bogie, that coming on the eighth hole when after being distracted by some loud talk on his tee-shot, he sent his second shot soaring over the green and took three to come back on the par four hole.

Coody also had four birdies but suffered bogeys on the fourth and 15th holes when he missed three-foot par putts.

Asked why he seems to play so consistently well for so long a time, Casper thought for a minute and replied, "well I guess I'm just improving with age."

It was left to little known pro Tom Aycock from Corpus Christi, Tex., to have the tournament's best round, a six-under par 66 which left him at 144 as the result of an opening day 78.

The field was cut to 73 players for the remainder of the 72-hold tourney.

Among those who failed to make the cut off figure of 146 were Doug Sanders, former U.S. Open champion, Julius Boros and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Smith, Sykes Reach Finals

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Defending champion Lancy Smith and medalist Gail Sykes go into the 36-hole final today of the New York State Women's Amateur Golf Championship after narrow victories in semi-finals Friday.

Both women wound up in sudden-death 19th holes after challengers had evened up the match play on the 18th.

Miss Smith of Buffalo's suburb of Snyder, was tied at the 18th hole when Wendy Hodgson of McConnellsville hit a good iron within 6 feet of the cup and one-putted for a birdie 4.

On the extra hole, both golfers were on the green in 2 but Miss Hodgson three-putted for a bogey.

Miss Sykes of Schenectady led into the 18th hole but her opponent Diane Wilde of Amsterdam chipped a nine iron third shot within a foot of the hole and dropped the putt for a birdie.

At the sudden-death hole, Miss Wilde just missed the green with her second shot and then chipped by the hole and missed the cup on her first putt. Miss Sykes was on in 2 and two-putted.

Ion Tiriac Defeats Stan Smith

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Romania's Ion Tiriac scored a stunning 6-3, 10-12, 6-2 upset Friday over Stan Smith, the top-ranking American player, and moved into the semi-final round of the $35,000 Washington Star International tennis tournament.

Tiriac's victory came after his countryman, Ilie Nastase, the top-seeded player, defeated Bog Hewitt of South Africa, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, and Arthur Ashe, the second-ranking American, beat Australia's Dick Crealy, 6-4, 6-3.

Cliff Richey, rated No. 3 in the United States, battled Georges Goven of France for the fourth spot in the semi-final round to be held Saturday on the public clay courts in Washington.

Tiriac, 31, and seeded seventh in the tournament, played brilliantly most of the way in his three set battle against Smith, the 23-year-old star from Pasadena, Calif. With beautiful control, the Romanian had Smith racing back and fourth across the court frantically trying to return an alternating attack of hard-hit passing shots, overhead slams and soft but accurate lobs.

Smith fought courageously to the end. After dropping the first set, he bounced back, at times with a series of classy shots, to even the score at one set apiece. The second set was marathan that had both players sweating profusely and gasping for breath by the time it ended with Smith breaking Tiriac's service.

The Romanian, however, came back strongly in the final set by breaking Smith's service twice to peg a four-one lead. Smith won the sixth game but then Tiriac took the next two and that was the match.

Nastase, had to go all out against Hewitt, a 30-year-old former Australian. Nastase, 23, and favored to take the $7,000 first prize, had difficulty controlling his booming serves and appeared somewhat less speedy than usual. But he managed to overcome Hewitt as the match wore on.

Ashe, a 27-year-old from Richmond, Va., who is seeded third in the tournament, had little trouble disposing of Crealy. Ashe will face Tiriac in the semi-final round on Saturday, which could be the first tough test he has had so far in the tournament.

Weaver Notices Perranoski

By United Press International

Earl Weaver ignored Ron Perranoski earlier this week but he couldn't help noticing the Minnesota reliever Friday night.

The Baltimore manager passed over all American League relief pitchers, including Perranoski, when he selected his staff for the All-Star game. As it turned out in Cincinnati, a strong left-handed reliever would have been useful, for the National League scored three runs in the ninth inning en route to victory.

Southpaw Perranoski gave Weaver an opportunity to see how an effective relief pitcher operates when he hurled three scoreless innings against the Orioles Friday night, enabling the Twins to win 5-4.

Weaver's bullpen faltered, allowing the Twins to tie the game in the ninth inning. Minnesota won on Tom Tischinski's two-out 10th-inning single that scored Harmon Killebrew from second base.

The loss kept Baltimore's lead in the Eastern division to five games over Detroit while Minnesota remained four ahead of California in the West with the triumph.

Minnesota manager Bill Rigney was quick to praise the nine-year veteran. "Perranoski (with 21 saves in addition to his six victories) has meant 27 games to this club. I can't imagine any reliever doing a better job than he has done for us," commented Rigney. "They couldn't touch him the last three innings."

In other American League action Detroit edged Chicago 4-3, California blanked Washington 10-0, New York trounced Oakland 7-1, Cleveland shutout Kansas City 6-0, and Boston downed Milwaukee 8-2.

Dick McAuliffe's ninth-inning single scored Cesar Gutierrez from second base with the winning run as Detroit edged Chicago despite Denny McLain's fifth failure to win his first game of the year.

Army-bound Billy Conigliaro and reserve infielder Dick Schofield drove in three runs each to lead the Red Sox to the victory over Milwaukee.

Braves Slate Doubleheader

KINGSTON

The Kingston Braves of the Mid-Hudson Rookie League will play a twi-night doubleheader against the Wappingers Falls Ions, Sunday, at Dietz Stadium. The first game will start around 6 p.m. Player-manager Buster Narum figures to pitch Ron Thomas in one of the games, with either Buster or Charlie Moore, undefeated thus far, picking up the other assignment.

Vols Nine Stage 10-Run Rally

KINGSTON

Don Miller fired four innings of no-hit, no-run ball in relief of starter Walt Houghtaling and then reaped the rewards for his effort as the Vols came up with 10 runs in the top of the seventh inning to defeat Chidsey-DeForest, 11-5, in a National Division Babe Ruth League contest.

Bill Costello, the losing hurler, was coasting along with a 5-1 lead going into the top of the seventh, just before the roof fell in. The first nine men reached base and scored on hits, walks and errors. Then, with two out, the winners added one more. Costello struck out eight and walked 11.

Kevin Crosby led the winners with two-for-four and a double. Jeff Lowe had two hits for the losers.

The Linescore:

Vols	000 100 10—11	5
Chidsey	311 000 0— 5	4

Walt Houghtaling, Don Miller and Kevin Crosby; Bill Costello and Kim Nicholas.

Kingston Duo Reaches Finals

NEWBURGH

The doubles team of Bill Zeeh and Dick Smith, Kingston, defeated Don and Dick Bouton, Newburgh, 6-4, 6-3, to reach the final round of the Mid-Hudson Valley Tennis championships being staged at the Powelton Country Club.

The Kingston team will face Leo Rolle and John Antonas of the Bahamas today in the finals. Rolle and Antonas topped William Morton and Dave Williams, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Rolle and Morton will play for the singles title today.

Jim Bouton's Ball Four

Only Pepitone Could Shake Off Sign at First

By JIM BOUTON

Edited by Leonard Shecter

AUGUST 27

IT JUST STRUCK me that I'm playing for a team that has beaten the St. Louis Cardinals two out of three and we've got Don Wilson, one of our aces, going tomorrow, and we're in a pennant race, and we won tonight because their shortstop made an error in the tenth and opened the door and we stepped in, just like the old Yankees used to. I think I'm going to cry.

AUGUST 29

I start tonight against Pittsburgh. I decided I wasn't going to be nervous. I wasn't going to let my stomach churn over. It was the Bard or Johnny Sain or somebody who said, "He who would be calm must take on the appearance of being calm."

So that's what I did. I tried to look relaxed, and after a while I felt relaxed. Shakespeare or somebody would have been a helluva pitching coach.

I don't think Bobbie would have been very good at it, though.

I called to tell her about the start and she said, "You? Why you?"

I guessed because Harry Walker likes to take chances.

* * *

I'm getting a big kick out of Blefary. He's called Buff, short for "Buffalo," because he works so hard.

Blefary on the pickoff play: "Now if you see me reaching for my throat — like this — that means you go into your stretch position, take your set, don't even look over. As soon as you get to your set, turn around and fire over there, hard and low, between the runner and the bag. I'll be there."

"And if you see me going for MY throat," I said, "it means I'm choking to death."

Which reminds me of Joe Pepitone's pick-off play. In the 1964 World Series with Lou Brock on first base, I gave the pick-off sign to Pepi, and when I took my stretch position and looked over toward first, he was standing there shaking his head, tiny shakes because he didn't want anybody to see. It was the first time I ever saw anybody shake off a pick-off sign.

It was in the 1963 Series that he lost a throw from third base in the shirts of the crowd and was the goat of the game. Now he didn't want to handle the ball any more than he had to. Just for the hell of it, I gave him the sign again a few pitches later. I wanted to see if he'd shake me off again. He did.

AUGUST 30

Norm Miller said he wanted to room with me and I said sure, but wouldn't I be coming between him and somebody else? "Nah," he said. "I've already filed papers on my former roommate."

SEPTEMBER 2

I dropped in on Spec Richardson and, speaking over the blare of Billy Graham pouring out of the office radio, I told him my tale of woe. I told him I'd lost a lot of money on the deal — at least $1,000 moving my family, etc. — and that when I signed a contract for $22,000 with Seattle it was on the basis of not knowing whether I'd be able to pitch in the majors.

I said I accepted the $22,000 with the thought that if I stayed in the big league for the whole season I would go in, and ask for an increase. I was just about to do that, I said, when I was traded and wound up having to spend money. I also said I knew that Spec would want to be fair.

Yes, indeed, he said, he wanted to be fair. He said that he certainly would help me with my hotel bill here and that he'd see if anything else could be done. He said if I did the job for him, I wouldn't have to worry.

So right away I started worrying.

SEPTEMBER 4

On September 1 rosters can be expanded from 25 to 40 players. This means there are a lot of eager young players around. Mine is named Bob Watson. He's a young catcher who thinks it will help his career if he learns to catch the knuckleball. "Yeah, put that knuckleball on me," he says.

Heh, heh, heh.

SEPTEMBER 5

Willie Mays was standing at the batting cage. I stuck my hand out. "I'm Jim Bouton."

"Oh, sure," he said. "Jim Bouton. I know you."

"You've always been one of my heroes," I said. "When I was a kid, my brother and I always used to go up to the Polo Grounds to watch you play."

"Now, why'd you have to go and say you came to see me when you were a kid?" Willie Mays said, his voice squeaky with mock anger.

"And you know something, Willie?" Tommy Davis said. "He's only 35 years old."

Mays groaned. "Why couldn't you just come over and say 'Hi'?" he said. "Now I feel like an old man."

Funny, he doesn't look like an old man. Especially when he plays baseball.

* * *

We beat the Giants 2-0 on a home run by Denis Menke. Larry Dierker pitched a marvelous game. This kid has everything.

Between innings of this great ball-game he pitched, Dierker sat on the bench and sang "Rocky Raccoon."

SEPTEMBER 7

Quote from Larry Dierker, whose ERA is so low everybody listens when he talks: "You know a ball club I can't see? I just can't see Atlanta. They just don't seem to have the depth. You know another club I can't see? Ours."

* * *

There was a rumor abroad in the land that the Astros were going to get Richie Allen from the Phillies and some of the Astros were against it. They said he's a bad guy to have on a ball club. Humph. I wonder what the Astros would give to have him come to bat just 15 times for us this season. It might mean a pennant.

If I could get Allen I'd grab him and tell everybody that Allen marches to a different drummer and that there are rules for him and different rules for everybody else. I mean what's the good of a .220 hitter who obeys the curfew?

Richie Allen doesn't obey the rules, hits 35 home runs and knocks in over 100. I'll take him.

SEPTEMBER 8

Universal beaver - shooting note:

Norm Miller drilled a small hole in a back of the dugout. We can now beaver-shoot any woman who sits in a certain seat in the first row. Not only that, if you blow through the hole, you get some interesting reactions. Miller is being acclaimed as · genius.

SEPTEMBER 9

Little old star-maker me was at work tonight. I was talking to Tommy Davis about his injured leg and it wasn't hard to tell he wanted to sit down instead of play. "Why don't you tell Harry," I said.

"I haven't been here that long," Davis said. "I'd feel funny about it."

"But Harry isn't like most managers," I said. "He'd appreciate the information and he wouldn't hold it against you."

"Well, maybe I'll talk to him," Davis said.

Sure enough, he walked into Harry's office and pretty soon he was scratched from the lineup. Harry put Norm Miller in and he went 3 for 4, knocking in four runs. It was a great evening.

After Miller got his third straight hit, Davis hollered down to Walker, "Hey, Harry, that leg isn't nearly as bad as I thought it was."

SEPTEMBER 12

Blefary was giving me the business tonight. The first time he played in the big leagues he hit against me. It was after my arm trouble had started, and I must say I wasn't throwing very well. Anyway, it was great for Blefary.

"Bulldog," he said, "you made my big-league debut a success. There I was in Yankee Stadium, on national television, with all my friends and relatives looking on, and I hit that blooper pitch of yours into the upper deck with two dudes on base. Thank you, Bulldog."

SEPTEMBER 15

There was a play in yesterday's game that would have beeen funny if it weren't so bad. We were leading 2-1 at the time and Joe Morgan's on second. With two out Blefary hits a clean single to right, certain to score Morgan — ecxept that Morgan rounds third, gets halfway home, then realizes that he hasn't touched third. So back he goes, tags it and again sets sail for home. Naturally he's thrown out at the plate.

All we have on Blefary's perfect scoring single is a third out. So today Blefary was grousing to Morgan about the RBI he lost on the play. "For crissakes, Helen Keller could have scored from second base on that hit. If I was a black man you'd have scored."

"If you were a black, it would've been a home run," Morgan said.

SEPTEMBER 16

Doug Rader and I agreed over breakfast that Harry Walker is a good man. One of the things Doug gets a kick out of is when Harry strikes a batting pose in the coffee shop or some other unlikely place to explain how he used to get base hits all the time. He's always giving out useful information. And how many managers are able to go over to a player and say, "Listen, I handled it wrong. I'm sorry!" Harry is.

* * *

Norm Miller says that has long been his ambition to sit in a laundry bag. He thinks if he did, and pulled the string tight over his head, it would be very quiet and peaceful.

SEPTEMBER 22

The Houston Astros do not give pay checks to their players. The money is deposited in Judge Hofheinz' bank and the players write personal checks for the money. This does two things. It gives the bank an opportunity to hold onto your money for a while. And it gets you into the habit of banking with the judge's bank. The judge never misses a trick.

OCTOBER 3

The last day of the season and I'm looking forward to being home again. It's convenient to travel with a ball club. Your suitcases are picked up at the hotel and your equipment at the ball park and you never see anything again until you get to the next hotel, the next ball park.

On the last day you carry your own suitcases, and you carry your equipment bag and somehow the weight felt good.

It was good that the season was over. And, let's see, spring training should start about February 22.

Warren Koegel, Penn State Center

Warren Koegel Co-Captain At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.— Warren Koegel of Glasco, N.Y. will co-captain the Penn State football team that enters the 1970 season with a 30-game unbeaten streak (longest in the nation) and 22 wins in a row since the 1967 Gator Bowl tie (17-17) with Florida State.

The last team to defeat Penn State was UCLA, 17-15, in the third game of the 1967 season. Following that loss, Penn State won the next seven games in 1967, tied Florida State in the Gator Bowl, posted a 10-0 record in 1968 and defeated Kansas in the Orange Bowl and then posted another 10-0 record last year and went on to defeat Missouri in the Orange Bowl.

Koegel, who stands 6-4 and weighs 240, is a senior and will be co-captain with linebacker Jack Ham.

The Nittany Lions expect Koegle to be as effective as he was in 1969 season when he was tabbed as surefire pro prospect.

"Warren figures to have an outstanding year," said James I. Tarum, assistant to the athletic director and public relations director for Penn State.

The Nittany Lions open their 1970 season against Navy in a home game at University Park, Pa., on Sept. 19. They are scheduled to meet Army at West Point on Oct. 24. The contest will be on regional TV.

Coach Joe Paterno, who has resisted numerous offers to enter the professional ranks, starts his fifth season as head coach. Paterno has compiled a spectacular 35-7-1 record in four seasons.

One of the big problems in 1970 will be inexperienced quarterbacking, lack of offensive line depth and a general weakening of the entire defense.

The strong spots are likely to be overall offense, receiving and punting and kicking.

Runs Galore In City Play

KINGSTON

Runs galore was the story in last night's version of the City Slow Pitch Softball League as eight teams combined for 82 runs in the four games played. Johnnie's Shell defeated Rite Cleaners in the B Division, 19-10, Strangegloves stopped the Corner Rest in four innings, 15-2.

In other action, the Garden of Eden downed Federal Venetian Blind, 10-5, while Boyle's A.C. nipped Boulevard Gulf, 11-10.

Ted Feeney scored the winning run for Boyle's on an error and hit two doubles. Don Ferraro also had a triple. Ron Burris had a double and a triple for the losers, while George Barnes added a triple.

Horace Walker smacked a homer and a triple, while Jerry Miller also homered for the Garden Club. Ted Marable was two-for-three with a double. Jim Reynolds also tripled for the winners, while Larry Johnson doubled.

Joe Tomson smashed two homers, while Joe Modica homered and doubled for the Strangegloves. Bernie Carroll Bob Matson also homered for the winners while Tom Frost went three-for-three, including a double and a triple.

Bill Slover and Will Hahn homered for Johnnie's while Vince Peck drove in four runs. Jim Amato, Peck, Rich Scherer and Hahn all went three-for-four for the winners. Johnson Smith had a perfect three-for-three for the Cleaners.

The line scores:

Johnnie's	460 405 0—19	20

Kickers Will Host The New York Hotas

MORGAN HILL

Kingston Sport Club Kickers go under the arc-lights tonight to host powerful New York Hota in an exhibition game at Oehler's Mountain Lodge Soccer Field.

The contest will be preceded by an Old-Timers game at 5:30 p. m. between the Sport Club oldies and Volkswagen of New York. Feature game is scheduled at 7:30 p. m.

Hota of the German-American Soccer Association has three players of national stature in Horst Kneissl, Horst Winter and Hans Stirneit.

Klaus Weber is expected to make his debut as the Kicker's new coach in tonight's game.

Pro Wrestling Returns To Kingston, July 31

KINGSTON

Professional wrestling returns to Kingston after a long absence on Friday, July 31, when Promoter Ted Bayly of Troy presents an all-star card of outstanding bouts at the Kingston municipal auditorium.

Headlining in the card will be an Australian tag team match between the Kangaroos meeting the team of Luis Martinez and Chief White Owl with a two out of three contest, with a 45-minute time limit.

The Kangaroos are Roy Hefferman, 6-3 and 240 pounds, and his partner, Al Costello, who stands 6-2 and tips the scales at 250 pounds. Both are from New Zealand and current sensations on their American tour.

Luis Martinez, the 6-5, 240-pound Puerto Rican joins with his partner, Chief White Owl, who is a full blooded Indian, who stands 6-4 and weighs 260 pounds. The Chief comes from New Mexico.

"This should be a great attraction to mark our return to Kingston," said Bayly. "The Kangaroos have been a sensation everywhere and I'm sure they'll please the Kingston fans."

Two more bouts will be added to the program that starts at 8:30 p. m.

Bayly, one of the state's leading wrestling promoters, has brought many of the era's great stars to Kingston, among them the late Primo Carnera, Argentina Rocca, Killer Kowalski and a host of others.

Bayly has been staging wrestling promotions in the Albany area for the past several years with great success.

"Wrestling is still going strong in some areas," Bayly pointed out. "Only a couple weeks ago, Bruno Sammartino drew more than 21,000 to Madison Square, the largest crowd ever for a sports event there."

Sammartino, of course, is the current world's champion among the merry matmen.

Bill Noreika Paced Area in All-Events

KINGSTON

Bill Noreika, a local school teacher, was the top local area All-Events money winner in the recently concluded 1970 New York State Bowling Tournament, where he finished in fifth place in the Scratch Division with an 1872 nine-game score. Fifth place in the Net Division pays $110.00. Noreika was the only local area bowler to finish in the money in the Net Division.

Local area bowlers fared best in the Five-Man Event where 49 combined handicap and scratch teams finished in the money out of 398 positions paying off for percentage of 12. In the minor events local area bowlers didn't fare as well.

In the Doubles there were 42 KBA money winners in 899 positions paying off a low four per cent. In the Singles three per cent of the local bowlers finished in the money with 63 out of 1806 receiving checks. Likewise in the All-Events only 30 of 814 money winners for a mere three per cent were from KBA area.

Biggest money winners locally were Dave Baker, Herb Rougire, Francis Van Gaasbeck, Wally Michaels and Bill Van Gaasbeck from the third place handicap team, Captain's Table, who received $200 each.

Two Fours Tied At Sawyerkill

SAUGERTIES

Four golfers tied for the low net title event at the Sawyerkill Country Club. The four were Al Conte, 45-12-33; Ken Maxwell, 44-11-33; Roy Quackenbush, 45-12-33; John Witzman, 47-14-33.

Four men also tied for second place. They were: Harry Szarmach, 40-6-34; Shad Fuller, 44-9-34; Hugo Knauert, 40-6-34; William Lodolce, 46-12-34.

Even-money favorite Extra Bonus posted a three-quarter length victory over Ulysse Mab Friday night in the $20,000 featured trot at Roosevelt Raceway. Extra Bonus turned the mile in 2:02, paying $4.20. Earl Laird was the show horse.

In New York state harness racing at Buffalo Raceway, Keystone Pat scored an easy win over Ferric Hanover in the $13,220 Reynolds Stakes pace. In third place was Leander Lobell. The winner's time for the mile was 2:01 4-5 and the return on a $2 win ticket was $3.60.

The $5,000 invitational handicap trot at Vernon Downs saw Speedy Spin coast to a 3½-length win, covering the mile in 2:01 1-5. Speedy Spin was followed by another Hambletonian hopeful, Gunner. Lovester took third. The victor paid $8.40.

In the first $4,000 co-featured mile trot at Saratoga Springs, Perkiomen Spot earned top honors by a nose over Mission Hanover, paying $4.60 for a winning ticket. Campbell Hanover was the show horse. The winning time was 2:05 4-5.

Bonnie L. Blaze took the second half of the co-feature in 2:03 3-57 to pay backers a handsome $39.60. Bonnie L. Blaze's margin over second-place Native Starlet was two lengths. Eudora B. took third.

The fourth race feature at Monticello Raceway saw Adios Byrd claim the winner's share of the $2,500 purse, outpacing Dwayne in the mile circuit. Don Brewster was third. Time for the winner was 2:04 4-5.

Is the Camp Safe?

This is the season when thousands of families send their children off to summer camps where they can learn new skills and experience the out-of-doors as well as have fun with children they normally would not meet.

Unfortunately, camping can also mean tragedy if those who conduct the camp are not properly trained to handle children and the activities in which the camp engages.

Only about 3,500 of the 11,000 private camps in the nation are accredited by the American Camping Association, which is the only agency whose standards include on-the-spot inspection of camping facilities. And only Michigan has a thoroughly comprehensive camp code, although 25 other states have some regulations.

Two federal bills have been introduced to legislate nationwide camping regulations, one by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and the other by Rep. Dominick V. Daniels, D-N.J., but both are still in committees because there is little public demand for federal law.

One private citizen, Mitchell Kurman of Westport, Conn., whose son was killed in a camping accident in 1965, has prodded Ribicoff and other legislators to act on a bill. Kurman has some definite ideas on what he would like done:

Prospective camp counselors would have to prove their ability first and would have to submit proof of their mental and physical stability. Camp equipment and trail equipment would have to meet certain standards. Camp brochures would have to be accurate in describing their facilities. Camp injuries would be filed at a central recording agency and a Red Cross representative would have to be present on waterfronts at all times. Licensing and safety inspections would be frequent.

Most camps go through each summer with unblemished safety records. Youth organizations like the Young Men's Christian Association and the Catholic Youth Organization, which flourish in major cities, are careful in their selection of counselors, equipment and sites. Camps associated with schools take similar steps, as do most of the private camps.

But parents who plan to send their children off for a week or more will do well to ask some pertinent questions and to make on-site inspections themselves before they entrust their children to the hands of others.

With only five states governing the minimum age of counselors and only 18 requiring camps to be licensed, there is too much chance for carelessness. Camping is one of the most rewarding experiences a youth can have, particularly if he or she lives in the confines of a city. It is only common sense to insure that the joy of camping is matched by safety.

Marx Had No Battalions

Remember the crack Josef Stalin made when he was told the Pope condemned him for the civil war that killed so many Russians? How many battalions does the Pope have? Stalin was supposed to ask. He inferred that to talk to him, the Pope needed to show his strength.

Well, Romanians think the world has changed since Stalin made that crack. Even Karl Marx has been dead 87 years. As someone recalled recently, he died before nuclear weapons, rockets, airplanes, space ships, radio and television, radar, the weapons of modern warfare, were known.

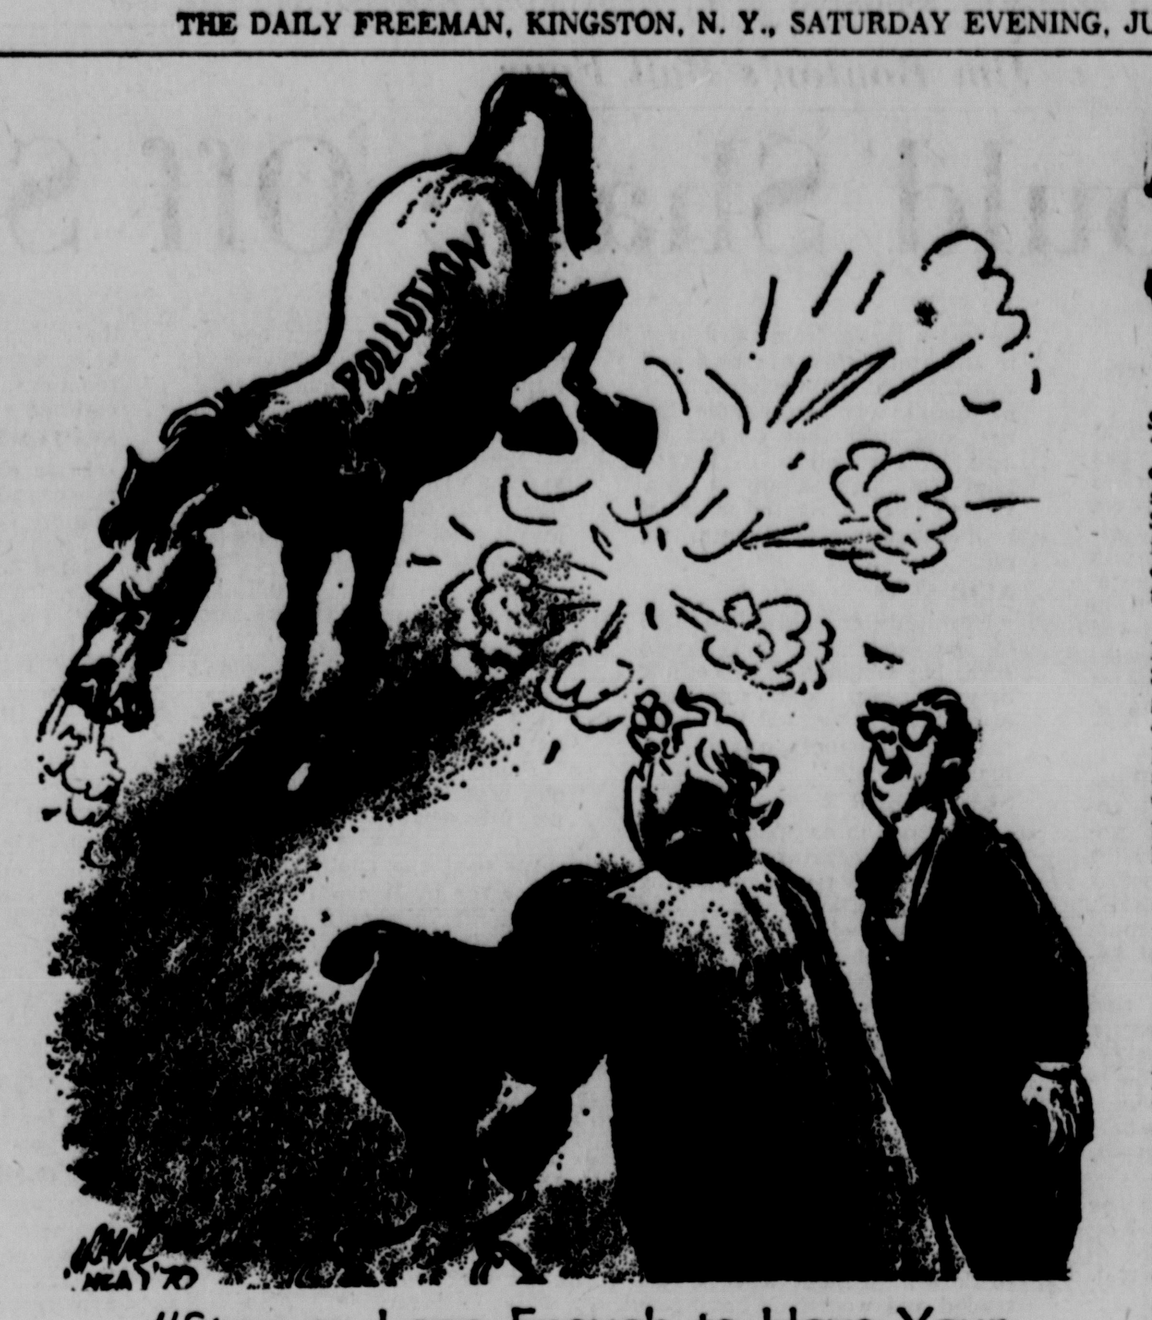
Nicolae Ceausescu, the Romanian leader, advocates a worldwide debate among Communists to bring Marxist ideology into present-day thinking. The debate would start with the obvious premise that his ideas are now obsolete and they must be replaced by ones that will work in today's world without warfare and misery and greed and starvation.

Other Communist nations and parties must share Ceausescu's thesis. They must feel that the number of battalions a nation can field no longer is the important test of its sovereignty, for they have not recovered from the inexcusable invasion and subjugation of Czechoslovakia. The world will be the better if Communists can call their souls their own, as free nations do. There would be less enmity among all nations then.

Curtis W. Tarr, the new selective service director, believes it would be difficult to raise an all-volunteer army now because of the unfavorable attitudes toward military service. It is enough to make the nation cut back on its commitments.

A competitor for the air bags proposed to protect auto riders in a collision has been proposed by Firestone Tire and Rubber. It is a blanket that would cover riders up to the chest almost instantly after a collision. It would not obscure vision, the maker says. The federal safety standard requires protection from collision by 1973.

In this day and age, it is great to read of a man who regards his as a 24-hour-a-day job. Gene Novak, president of Rumrill-Hopt advertising agency, was talking about creative advertising writers. He said copywriters hold a 24-hour-a-day job, because they can get ideas any time. That is both the joy and the agony of creative work.



"Stay on Long Enough to Have Your Picture Taken!"

Henry J. Taylor Says

Israel Statesman Ben-Gurion

PARIS — French intimates of diminutive, pugnacious David Ben-Gurion, 83, Israeli's first premier, fear for his health. He was always a hero in this country, which has the largest Jewish community (535,000) in Europe.

On May 18 Ben-Gurion, Israel's dominant figure for the first 15 years of her life, resigned his traditional seat in the Knesset, Israel's Parliament. He is living on the Sde Boker kibbutz in the Negeb desert and apparently weakening. His worried Paris friends are also studying Ben-Gurion's unpublished memoirs. They call much in them explosive; as hot as the Negeb itself.

Ben-Gurion's references to President Kennedy are highly questioning. He says he met Kennedy three times, the last shortly before his inauguration. Kennedy told him: "I was elected by the Jews of New York City, and I would like to do something for the Jewish people."

"I was shocked," comments Ben-Gurion. "Why should he say such a thing, and especially to a foreigner?"

He quotes Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, not in disagreement, as saying to an envoy of President Kennedy: "The genius of your President's foreign policy is that you do not make clear-cut stupid moves. You make only complicated stupid moves, which cause us to wonder in our mystification whether there isn't something to them that we have missed."

On Nasser himself, Ben-Gurion points out that the president of the United Arab Republic sprang from the village of Beni Mar, a dusty little town of mud huts on the Nile. The British had dominated Egypt since 1882. Even as a boy, Ben-Gurion observes, and later in the Royal Military College from which Nasser graduated in 1938, he was "outraged" by the presence of "outsiders" — khaki-clad British soldiers preoccupied with their shiny Sam Browne belts and carrying their swagger sticks at the ready.

Against this background, Ben-Gurion credits Nasser, in spite of all failure, with having done something no other Arab leader had been able to do in 2,500 years — end Egypt's domination by other nationalities, and thus achieve an important factor in holding the Egyptian people.

Ben-Gurion never underestimated the Cairo fanatic. He was immediately thrown on guard when Nasser, with seven other officers in their so-called Free Officers Committee overthrew the detested, corrupt, pleasure-driven King Farouk I at dawn on July 23, 1952. "I woke up that morning," he states, "with the greatest foreboding in my bones."

This was confirmed, he says, as he saw Nasser transfer an interest in Pan-Arabism into obsessions summarized by the statement: "Egypt will fight forever to eliminate the shadow of Zionism from Palestine and to restore Arabism." Moreover, he sees Yasir Arafat's guerrillas moving to take the destiny of the Palestine Arabs out of the hands of the Arab world leader and into their own.

Accordingly, Ben-Gurion predicts that, whether under Nasser or a successor, what the Arabs describe as the Sira'a — the historic struggle — will continue.

Israel's elder statesman, born in Plonsk, Russia, distinguishes emphatically between the Arab leaders and the Arab peoples. With that blend of understanding which the ancient Greeks called "agape," he has only generous words for the Arab peoples and the Moslem "church."

He emphasizes that it was they who gave shelter and asylum to Jews fleeing Christian Europe's pogroms from the Spanish Inquisition and the persecutions of Czarist Russia, down to the ghastly Nazi exterminations that Hitler called "The final solution."

He emphasizes that we in the United States persistently misconstrue Arab-Jew relations. He points out that, in fact, for long years the Palestine Arabs and Jews were held together as allies by their mutual hatred for their British masters, and that, for centuries, any child — Jew or Arab — born in the same week, automatically became a foster-brother or sister of that other child.

As there will be here in France, there should also be a feeling of mourning in our country if the sands run out for respected statesman Ben-Gurion.

Arms Cost Could Upset Bonn's Fight Against Inflation

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

BONN, GERMANY (NEA) West German leaders, though plainly disturbed over an inflation that has reached 3.8 per cent year, are not yet openly facing the fact that prospective new military spending could upset their battle against a rising price tide.

When Chancellor Willy Brandt visited President Nixon earlier this year, he agreed in principle that his country before too long should begin paying a substantial share of "support costs" of maintaining more than 200,000 (of 310,000 in Europe) U.S. troops now stationed in Germany.

At the moment the total yearly cost of keeping all our NATO-oriented forces in Europe is $12 billion. Some experts argue that if military pay increases go on rising at the pace they have, our expenditures for this operation could rise 50 per cent in 10 years.

It should be remembered that these costs compare with roughly $20 billion now being spent annually in Indochina, and that these high and potentially higher U.S. military costs in Europe go on though not a shot is being fired.

The President's real hope of course, is ultimately to reduce our European troop commitments. But neither Brandt nor other West European leaders want our force levels cut at this time. The promise by West Germany to assume more of the support burden is clearly a palliative step designed to ease our present net military deficit in Europe of more than $1 billion a year.

It has been guessed that pickup of some support costs by Bonn could cut that deficit by at least $250 million annually through use of more German backup personnel and more supply services paid in marks rather than U.S. dollars.

On my recent extensive talks with West German private and public financiers, industrialists, Bonn legislators and others, I found it fascinating that this aspect of German's inflation problem was never volunteered in discussion. Only one lawmaker, a key member of the small Free Democratic party now in the ruling coalition with Brandt's Social Democrats, acknowledged under pressure:

"We're aware we have to take over a share of the burden. It just has to be done."

The role of government spending was nearly ignored, yet Brandt's commitment to do more on the military side seems unmistakably plain.

Even without our Vietnam war costs, we spend 7 per cent of our gross national product yearly for defense. West Germany, together with other "center region" NATO allies, spends less than 4.5 per cent of its GNP. Moreover, again excluding our Vietnam spending, we annually lay out for defense three times what Germany does on a per capita basis.

These "center region" allies have about eight of every 1,000 men under arms, while the United States, again not counting Vietnam, has 13.

Germany's private enterprisers think Brandt is dragging his feet on the whole inflation problem. An important member of his party told us they were waiting for clear indicators that real application of the brakes is necessary. But the private sector and the Bundesbank (Germany's counterpart to the U.S. Federal Reserve) have already trumpeted to Brandt that the time is now.

Even if the chancellor quickly decides to step on the brakes, I find it intriguing that he and other leaders say so little about so crucial an inflationary factor as prospective higher military spending.

Bonn surely must come to it. Indeed, the day is not too remote when Germany and Europe may see U.S. troop level cuts up to 100,000 or more, with a bigger shift of burdens to Europe. My guess is Brandt avoids the issue now because it fits poorly with his high-priority efforts to settle the Polish-German border matter and get a non-aggression pact with Russia.

Sandoval Will Face Quiz On Small Business Loans

WASHINGTON — Hilary Sandoval Jr., sometimes called "Hilarious Hilary" by subordinates who retain their sense of humor, has kept the Small Business Administration in an uproar since he took it over 16 months ago. Consider these highlights:

- He loaned $41,000 to a Denver dive, called the Body Shoppe, which features topless go-go dancers. This curious cultural investment of the taxpayers' money was justified, said a spokesman, because the go-go bar had been displaced by an urban renewal project.
- As evidence that voters who elect Republicans will be rewarded with federal blessings, the Republicans arbitrarily approved a $315,000 loan that the Philadelphia regional office was ready to reject. This happy sum went to Lawrenceville Furniture Industries of Lawrenceville, Va., an enterprise that, unhappily, hasn't paid it back. Our investigation shows that the Republicans took the application away from Philadelphia after learning the regional office wouldn't okay it and forwarded it to Richmond with a Washington endorsement. This was intended as a political shot-in-the-arm for Virginia's GOP Gov. Linwood Holton, say insiders, to help persuade the electorate that it pays to vote Republican.

Democrats Banished

- Sandoval has squandered hundreds of thousands of dollars to move civil service employes, whom he suspected of Democratic leanings, to undesirable posts. The taxpayers were stuck with the moving costs, per diem payments and other incidentals.
- Unpublished records show astonishing mismanagement of the Small Business Investment Companies, which Sandoval likes to brag about. In fiscal 1969, with Sandoval in control a third of the year, there were 1,500 violations of SBA edicts by SBICs. Five hundred were major. For example, 40 small business investment loans were actually used to finance big businesses. There were also 62 guideline violations, 56 conflicts of interest and 25 flouting of agreements. During the first nine months of the 1970 fiscal year, another 725 violations were reported.
- Sandoval has also boasted that he has loaned out $28 million to minority businessmen. Yet half of these loans were committed by the Democrats before he came to power. The bitter truth is that some of these loans went to poorly run black businesses, which were given noncompetitive government contracts at far higher costs than the government previously had paid to established firms. Some of the established firms have now been bankrupt by the loss of business.

The House Small Business Committee, headed by Rep. Joe Evins, D-Tenn., will take Sandoval over the coals at hearings scheduled next week.

Missing Highway

Nathan Jacobson, the new king of Lake Tahoe's picturesque northern shore, is about to raise a royal ruckus over some unique highway robbery. He charges indignantly that someone has stolen his highway.

Jacobson built Kings Castle, a Tudor-style resort hotel complete with pennants fluttering over high battlements, on the highway that circles Lake Tahoe.

Not long after he started construction, however, the state built a four-mile bypass that takes the traffic away from his $20 million Camelot.

Jacobson is suspicious of Bill Anderson, owner of the nearby Ponderosa spread where the Bonanza TV adventures are filmed. The bypass takes the traffic right past Ponderosa's gates, which are open to the public for $2 a head.

It happens that Anderson's wife, Joyce, is head of the Nevada Federation of Republican Women. Jacobson suspects this has given her an inside track with the Republican state government.

The Anderson's denied to this column, however, that they had anything to do with relocating the highway. They suggested that Boise Cascade, the corporate developers, might be to blame. For the bypass runs through a stretch of woods owned by the company, thus enhancing its value.

A company spokesman assured this column, however, that the four-mile bypass had been planned and surveyed before they purchased the property. This was confirmed by the original owner, Art Wood, who said he had contributed $400,000 to help defray the cost of relocating the highway.

Apparently Jacobson, in his search for a choice location, selected a wooded paradise whose inhabitants wanted to keep the public out. Residents got the county and state to adopt a master plan, which would divert the traffic away from the lake front. The unsuspecting Jacobson went ahead with Kings Castle, in the meantime, unaware that he had picked the only spot on the lake so exclusive that the traffic was to be routed around it.

Footnote: Jacobson, whose past royal enterprises include the construction of Las Vegas's glittering Caesars Palace, is a tiger in business who can be expected to put up an almighty battle to get his highway back.

Dr. Commoner, Ecologist, Sees Hope in Man's Creativity

By TOM TIEDE

ST. LOUIS — (NEA) — There are reliable scientists today who believe man has become so gluttonously insensitive that one day he will decide to save his dreary planet by legally executing the poor, the old and the excessive unborn.

It's a doomsday view of humanity.

But, interestingly, it's one that the nation's foremost doomsdayer discounts. Dr. Barry Commoner, ecologist, microbiologist at Washington University. And, for several years, the nation's leading crier of impending environmental disaster. Says he, on the subject of man:

"I am very disturbed at the trend to view man as totally destructive. We are beginning to look on human beings as plain evil. We are maligning our own greatest gift — creativity. We talk more and more about what this creativity has done wrong. But we seldom consider all the beautiful things it's brought about. Look around at all of the wonders, all of the good humanity has created."

For those who know Barry Commoner by reputation only, this statement is a mouthful. Since 1953, when he first began insisting that strontium 90 was collecting in infant teeth, the aggressive, often abrasive scientist has been impatiently warning the world's population to slow down and start over again.

Yet, now, many disasters later, he puts in a good word for people.

Sitting in his cluttered office. Trying repeatedly, and in vain, to find this paper or that. Craggy face. Fifty-three years old. A spellbinding head of graying hair.

He says with feeling:

"I have faith in human beings. Perhaps I am naive. They say all scientists are naive. But I cannot imagine that man simply wants to destroy himself. I think people are smart enough, decent enough to solve our most pressing problems."

This change in Dr. Commoner, if change it is, is not really surprising. When he first began to preach ecological worry, he was all but alone, save for some unlistened-to conservationists. Now the field is crowded with instant experts, all shouting greater alarm—the better to be heard.

Evidence is that fewer and fewer people are listening to the shouting, that doomsaying has become counterproductive. People seem now to be asking scientists for positive alternatives — and Commoner is one of those taking heed.

Right now, for example, the doctor is working on a study which, so far anyway, indicates that man is not the piggish lout he is made out to be. It also hints, happily, he is not in immediate danger of overpopulating himself out of existance.

Dr. Commoner explains:

"What we're doing is drawing up comparisons of human consumption today as compared to the 1940s. And we've found the consumption per capita is usually no greater and sometimes a little less. Beer, for example. In 1950 was drank 24.99 gallons per capita; today it is 25.88. And how about shoes? In 1946 we wore 3.76 pairs per capita per year; in 1968 it was 3.23. And textiles? In 1947 we produced 86 yards of broad woven fabric per capita; today the figure is down to 65 yards."

What's the point? Just this: that during the same 20-year study period, while population increased 43 per cent, and while per-capita consumption remained constant, the nation's pollution level increased 500 to 1,000 per cent. Therefore, Commoner says, "The increase in the population has not been the chief cause of pollution, or the percentages of increase would be the same for both."

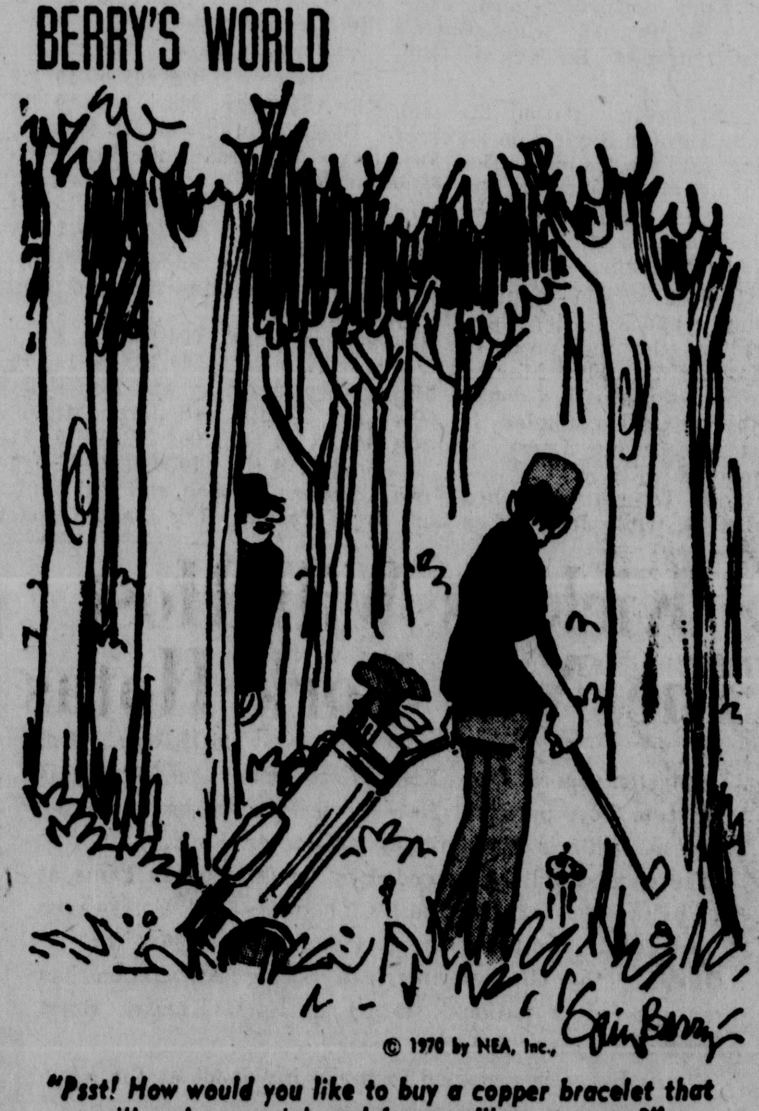
So what has been the chief cause of pollution?

Commoner says the culprit is "the social misdirection of human creativity." In short, progress. Although we drink the same amount of beer today as we did 25 years ago, we now drink it in different containers — instead of returnable bottles or steel, we use aluminum or disposable bottles. The process which creates aluminum also creates excess power which in turn creates more pollution. The same can be said of new fabrics, new plastics and all the other modern paraphernalia that upsets the ecological scheme of things.

The solution to the nation's environmental bog, then, seems quite obvious to Dr. Commoner. Having fewer babies would do little good. But redirecting, reorganizing or even outlawing some modern industrial methods would do wonders.

It's a hard choice. But at least it's an alternative free of doom.

BERRY'S WORLD



"Psst! How would you like to buy a copper bracelet that will make you rich and famous like a top pro?"

TEEN SCENE: The Tennessee Birdwalk to Success

Jack Blanchard and Misty Morgan aren't exactly impossible, but they're more than slightly improbable. They dress mod, they sing country and western, they have a son with four feet and grey hair, and they have a gold record about birds in dirty underwear. They drive a racing car that gives them cramps, look alike twins, and snow people so that they like it . . .

They have been unmarried for seven years, and it must be working, because they clearly love each other. Jack is 29 and Misty is over 21. She might possibly be over 31, as well, but she isn't saying, and it really isn't important. The two seem to be almost exactly the same height—about five-foot-eight—and they both have unbelievably thick black hair and blue eyes. Hers have golden highlights and his have mod blue sunglasses, cleverly ground to a perscription for extreme myopia. Those glasses serve Jack as more than a sunscreen and a visual aid—they also serve as a refuge, allowing him to watch without being watched. Their family consists of a five-year-old son named Wolf, who has sad brown eyes and thick grey ringlets. Wolf (which is short for Wolfgang Mozart Blanchard) is, incidentally, a small grey poodle who accompanies the couple everywhere.

That means more of a sacrifice than it might seem, because the couple, after years of coping with assorted clunkers, splurged their first royalties on a golden Stingray inscribed with their names and outfitted with every goody and noodle in the book. Unfortunately, breathing space was not among the available options, and if Wolf so much as shivers his tail while traveling, he knocks off either Jack's sunglasses or Misty's eyelashes. The couple is understandably considering trading their glamorous sardine tin in for a schoolbus.

National success means a lot of time on the road touring for the couple. During their concert outside of Kingston, it meant a dinner of cold hot dogs, burnt hamburgers, and damp potato chips, gobbled while making radio tapes, autographing photos, and giving interviews—all on an average of three hours sleep a night. Wolf gets a little more.

Misty is the extrovert, Jack the introvert. They were both born in the same hospital in Buffalo, but Jack spent the rest of his life in Florida, where he met Misty. She discovered his singing talent, but he'd already been on the road to success as a writer—he writes most of the couple's songs (including Tennessee Birdwalk and Humphrey the Camel) and has a newspaper column in Florida, "Misty Voices." Some of these columns are collected in a thin, but very funny book, "Alien Invaders."

Jack hides his deep side back of a screen of wisecracks, but behind the blue lenses his eyes are mischievous and friendly. When he was asked, for the thousandth time, if there were a hidden meaning in "Tennessee Birdwalk," he replied "if there is, only my psychologist knows what it is." Perhaps a pro-conservation message? "Well, some thought it was ecology, and some thought it was racism, but truthfully, what it was, was pornography." (Actually, some radio stations have banned both "Birdwalk and Humphrey" because of "objectionable content.")

Jack and Misty could have wished that one of their serious (if slightly maudlin) songs, such as "Sunset Train" or "Changing Times" had been a hit instead of the two humorous numbers. At first they were afraid of being typed as novelty singers, and they didn't feel that this was good for their image. Now they realize that the "funnies" will attract listeners to the work they prefer. And what had Jack considered their image to be? "We thought we were sex symbols," he wisecracked, trying to rescue his hamburger from Wolf. They are, and they are symbols of the young, concerned, talented people being drawn to country music, replacing the sequined cowboy hats and lyrics about hounds and purty girls.

Why had Jack and Misty chosen to be considered country instead of rock singers? Misty answered seriously while Jack was muffled by the hamburger—they consider their lyrics to be important, and people to listen to the words of country songs.

Their next single will probably be one of their more serious numbers, one called "The Dum Song," incorporating baroque effects. A second album is also in the works, and they are writing songs for other artists.

Jack Blanchard and Misty Morgan have been singing together for two and a half years, and one and a half hits. This could be the beginning or the end of big things for them. Either way, they give the impression of being satisfied young people. Success is sweet, but all they really need in life is each other, and Wolf. And it would be nice to have four hours sleep a night for a change . . .

Interact's Turn to Host

SAUGERTIES

A group of Saugerties High School students have just returned from a three-week visit to England and are eagerly preparing for a return visit from the British.

Under the leadership of William Hayes, assistant principal of Saugerties High School and Ron Deak, Rotary Interact chairman, 24 boys, the entire Saugerties Interact Club, left in late June. They started their visit to London for several days and spent the balance of the vacation with English families in Northumberland. While there they visited many historical and cultural points of interest with their host families.

The return visitors are expected to arrive in the United States Aug. 4. Twenty English girls accompanied by four adult leaders will then travel to Saugerties where they will be guests of local families. Plans are being completed for a number of activities while they are here. Included are a reception at Governor Rockefeller's office in Albany, a trip to West Point, Catskill Mountain jaunts and many other tours.

The Interact Club spent a busy year in preparation for the trip to England. Each boy on his own earned $100 toward expenses. In addition, they sponsored a faculty-Interact basketball game and co-sponsored a Collarman Concert with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society. Saugerties Rotary as part of Rotary's aim at International understanding, contributed $1,200 for the project. Arrangements for visiting with English families were completed by Deak with Rotary International members in England.

The one lone girl who made the overseas trip with Interact was Suzanne Deak, daughter of the group leader who went on to visit relatives in Germany while the boys toured England.

It is believed that this is the first time a New York State service club group has sponsored a student contingent of this size for overseas travel.

Boys who made the flight were William Benham, Robert Carr, Steve Ahrens, David Fuller, Robert Houtman, John Bach, Michael Bond, Christopher Anderson.

Also, Raymond Andreassen, Michael Baran, Steven Bernard, Peter Fredkin, David Reinhard, Lynn Whiteword, Daniel Moser, David Carnright, David Lack.

Also, Mark Ishranian, Robert Garrison, Michael Flannery, Robert Todaro, John Carnright, John Johnson and Thomas Keefe.

Onteora Rates Praise

BOICEVILLE

Onteora High School students received the glowing praise of the National Vietnam Refugee and Information Service this week for their contribution to the work of that organization.

Randy Engel, executive director of the service which has headquarters in Export, Pa., wrote the following letter commending the students for their efforts.

"While the destructive action of a handful of radical students continues to capture daily headlines, I wish to acknowledge the positive and unselfish action of the students of Onteora Central School in Boiceville, who in the finest of American tradition have extended a helping hand to the suffering children of wartorn Vietnam.

"On June 23, 1970 our office received a check for the sum of $576.65 which had been collected by the students of Onteora Central under the sponsorship of the Student Council.

"The funds, which are already on their way to South Vietnam will be used to buy food for the war orphans in three areas of the country where the orphan problem is most acute, Saigon, Bien Hoa and Phan Rang in the Central Highlands coastal region.

"The recipients of the school gift includes the Ky Quang and Lam Ti Ny Social Welfare Agencies and Orphanages in Saigon, the Christian and Missionary Alliance Center for Rag Lai Tribesmen in Phan Rang and St. Dominick's and Bethany Orphanages in Bien Hoa.

"In token of our appreciation I have forwarded a set of booklets on Vietnamese culture to the school and a collection of Vietnamese stamps for the Student Council membership and students.

"The parents, teachers and civil service leaders of your community should be very proud of your young people. As a former New Yorker, I know I am."

Explorers in Space Seminar

This week is an exciting one for 58 young men in this country.

During the week, they attended a Space Seminar at NASA's Kennedy Space Center, Florida. The youths, all high school sophomores, represented the 50 states plus eight foreign countries.

The Space Seminar is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola Company and the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, in cooperation with the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Competition was open to all high school sophomores, not only Explorers, who are interested in science. Winners were chosen for their outstanding school leadership and community service and on the basis of their 400-word essay, What Is Man's Future in Space?

The seminar was not all space and science. Each evenuing the men gathered for scheduled sessions to share their ideas on many problems, including youth, politics and peace.

National selections were made by a committee of prominent businessmen who, as members of the national Exploring Committee, attended the 60th Annual Meeting of the BSA in Denver, Colo. last May. Foreign students were selected primarily from families at foreign embassies in the United States. Countries represented included Brazil, Canada, France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Mexico, and The Netherlands.

Highlights of the seminar included boarding the 6½-million-pound Crawler Rocket Transporter for an inspection while in motion; a special briefing on the Apollo 14 mobile launcher; ascension of the launch umbilical tower; and entrance to the Apollo command and lunar module simulators.

O'Brian began sponsoring youth programs in 1958 after he visited Dr. Albert Schweitzer in Africa.

Youth in News—Art, Honors

Two area high school students are spending summer with the arts. Judith L. Fitzgerald of 295 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, and Susan Kinsch of Esopus Avenue, Town of Ulster, are among the 200 high school students from 32 states attending the art division of the Midwestern Music and Art Camp held at the University of Kansas June 21 - July 26.

Offering a complete program of instruction by the University faculty members, the Art Camp provides studio classes planned for students with no previous training as well as those with experience in school and private classes.

Required courses are design, drawing, and art history. Students chose two elective courses from seven offered — calligraphy, ceramics, jewelry, painting, printmaking, sculpture, and weaving.

Director of the Art Camp is John S. McKay, associate dean for visual arts in the School of Fine Arts at K.U.

On her way to an executive career in merchandising is an area resident who graduated from Skidmore College in June. Daria Mainetti, daughter of Mrs. Alda Mainetti of St. Remy, will start a one year program at the Laboratory Institute of Merchandising in September.

The Laboratory Institute, which is now in its 32nd year, occupies its own building at 12 East 53 Street, New York City. The school has an enrollment of approximately 300 students training for executive positions in the fields of merchandising and retailing. Classes are supplemented by a variety of field trips, guest speakers and paid work projects in department stores.

Past semester achievements are still trickling in through the Youth in the News mailbag.

Three Ulster County students were among those on the University of Vermont dean's list for the past semester. New York State students who made the honors rating at Burlington numbered 213.

Local students on the list are Michele E. Resnick of 35 Elm Street, Ellenville; Mary K. Poag, 38 Griffin Drive, Kingston, and Charles S. Weidman of 9 Mill Stream Road, Woodstock.

Two area students have received recognition for outstanding academic achievement at Russell Sage College, Troy. Named to the dean's list are Christina A. Parete, Buck Road, Stone Ridge and Paulette E. Fitzgerald of Kingston.

William Hodgson of RD 2, Saugerties, was one of 171 students named to the dean's high honor list at Utica College of Syracuse University.

Robert A. Emery has completed his junior year at Syracuse University with a perfect 4.0 average for the entire year. Robert, a history major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Emery of 34 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties.

Another area student achieving a perfect 4.0 average was Christine Francello, also of Saugerties. She is a sophomore at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa. Named to the Bucknell dean's list was Thomas Giles Woodhouse of 48 Center Street, Ellenville, also a sophomore.

Several Ulster County students at the College of St. Rose in Albany were announced as dean's listees this week. They are Patricia A. Clausi of RR 1, Box 215, East Kingston; Maryrose Caprotti of 120 Andrew Street, Ann Fuller, 52 Wilson Avenue, Jeanne Gaffney, 40 Boulevard, Patricia M. Deegan of 286 Albany Avenue and Joanne T. Rodell, 186 Main Street, all of Kingston; Sharon Dunn of 27 Bennett Avenue, Saugerties.

Ulster County students at Siena College, Loudonville, who attained the academic honor list for the spring semester are: Michael Brown, Richard Cogswell, James Gilpatric, Barry Hughes, William McCord and Philip Toffel of Kingston; Anthony Cesare and John Fanelli, both of Wallkill.

James Dolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dolan of 79 Orchard Street, Kingston has been named to the honor roll at St. John Fisher College, Rochester for the second semester.

St. John Fisher College is a private liberal arts college for men. The first class of 110 entered in 1951. Since that time nine buildings have been build and there are now 1,200 students.

Dolan is a sophomore majoring in physics at St. John Fisher.

Student Paintings on Display

NEW PALTZ

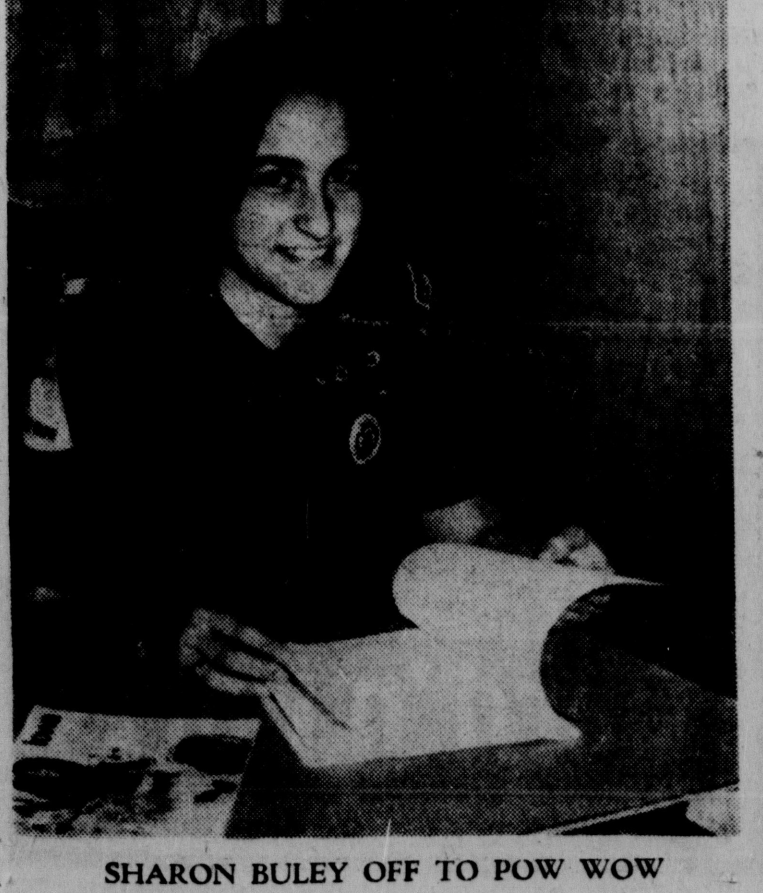
An exhibition of paintings, photographs and sketches by a student at Dutchess County Community College will be on display at the New Paltz Savings Bank, Main Street, beginning July 19 and running through July 31.

Jeffrey George Brown, a 1969 graduate from Roosevelt High School in Hyde Park, has exhibited his works throughout Dutchess County and, most recently, at the Wayside Palette in Hyde Park.

Brown was born in Chicago in 1951 and lived in Cincinnati, Ohio and Madison, Wisconsin, before moving to Hyde Park in 1961. He majored in commercial art at the Dutchess campus this past year.

The exhibition will be open to the public Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Friday, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Shokan Girl Studies Indian Culture



SHARON BULEY OFF TO POW WOW

KINGSTON

Sharon Buley, Shokan, member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 172, Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts left this week to attend the Sacajawea Pow Wow sponsored by the Moingona Girl Scout Council of Central Iowa July 15 to 28.

Sharon, a student at Onteora High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Buley Jr and one of 128 Girl Scouts from 36 states who have been selected to participate in the Pow Wow.

The Sacajawea Pow Wow is a camping event focusing on the American Indian. The goal of the event is to give the participants an opportunity to study in depth the American Indian cultures so that these young women will have a greater understanding of the Indians and their own relationship with them.

Sharon will pursue this goal by means of concentrated study of arts and crafts, ceremonies, social and religious customs and dancing, food and dwellings, travel (canoeing, back-packing and hiking), costumes and dress, and through forums concerning the Indian's heritage and future. Sharon's special interest is the Plains-Prairie Indian Tribes. Part of her preparation assignment is the study of the Indians who inhabited that area.

The Pow Wow is being held at Camp Sacajawea near Boone, Iowa. The camp contains 405 acres of beautifully wooded ravines and plateaus bordering the Des Moines River and is an area rich in the heritage of the plains Indians. The camp is named for the Shoshone Indian woman who guided Lewis and Clark during much of their exploration of western America. Sacajawea means "Bird Woman."

In addition to the staff, who are all volunteers, there will be many special consultants of Indian descent from around the mid-west. One very special guest will be Mrs. Robert Horne, a retired school teacher and a great, great granddaughter of Sacajawea. Mrs. Horne has been active in Indian affairs for many years and received national recognition.

This 13-day experience is one of the Wider Opportunities offered to selected Senior Girl Scouts and 9th Grade Cadettes, in the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, a member of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Not everyone buys Bonds for retirement.

Not anymore anyway.

Especially since the new higher interest rates went into effect.

U.S. Savings Bonds now pay 5% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% for the first year; thereafter 5.20% to maturity).

Interest like that makes Bonds a great way to save for the extra things that make living a little bit more fun. Boats, vacations, campers, a place at the lake or in the mountains. Things you can enjoy while you're still feeling young.

You can get your savings plan started by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you bank.

Start saving now. Bonds are for more than retiring.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.

With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.

Two-Week Escape From City

Fresh Air Program in 93rd Year

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

When Charles "Jim" Van Voorhis returned home from work about a week ago, the first words which greeted him from his newly arrived eight-year-old Fresh Air Fund boy were, "Are you the husband? You sure don't look like a farmer?"

Mr. and Mrs. Van Voorhis are one of many families in rural settings along the Eastern Seaboard who have taken a child from New York City for a two-week vacation, that otherwise would never have come about.

A Fresh Air Fund spokesman in the Manhattan headquarters said that the program is in its 93rd year. Apparently founder Rev. Willard Parsons felt even in 1877 that the children of the big city needed a change once in a while.

This year, about 18,000 children, primarily from low income or welfare families, will spend two weeks in the homes of thousands of families through the Friendly Town program of the Fresh Air Fund.

The spokesman told The Freeman that the Fund's Dutchess County camp in Fishkill accommodates 2,500 youngsters, and the rest are scattered across the rural landscape of 12 states in the East.

The basic purpose is simply to "get the children out of the city for awhile, and show them what rest of the world is like."

And while children growing up in the small cities and towns of Ulster and Dutchess Counties take such things as grass and cows for granted, some incidents related about Tony, from The Bronx, will show that that this is not always the case for those who spend their entire childhood in six-story apartment buildings.

Mrs. Van Voorhis said that Tony was afraid of a German Shepherd when he arrived, thinking it was a wolf, and thought a rabbit hopping across the backyard was a squirrel.

But in the week since Tony has arrived, he has learned to milk the family's goats and takes pride in what he calls "picking" the eggs.

He is a very outgoing boy, and immediately greets all strangers venturing to the Van Voorhis property, about four miles from Rhinebeck, with a smile, an outstretched hand, and the words, "Hi. I'm Tony. Who are you?"

There are two children in the Van Voorhis family, Jennifer aged 7 and Billy, 5. They were reported at first slightly taken aback by the aggressiveness inbred in their visitor, but were playing happily in the yard when The Freeman paid a visit.

Tony was particularly impressed by a bonfire ceremony at a nearby Boy Scout camp and said that he would really like to live in the country during the car trip home. He lives with his parents and three brothers in an apartment building with a small dirt yard and much litter, according to his report.

Children accepted for the Fresh Air Fund program must be from families which could not otherwise afford this two-week escape from the heat of the city.

Many form strong ties with their country "families" and return year after year to the same place. And while the Fund discourages excessive fraternizing between the city and country families as a matter of policy, according to Mrs. Van Voorhis, there have been cases where the country children have ended up visiting in the city.

Besides being an eye-opener for her own children, Mrs. Van Voorhis feels that it has helped knock down the stereotype of the country person portrayed on "Green Acres" and the "Beverly Hillbillies."

"Jim" Van Voorhis does his "farming" indoors, anyway. He works in a florist shop.

Payments for Ulster Farmers For Program Participation

KINGSTON

Approximately 75 per cent of the farmers of Ulster County have received payments for participation in the 1970 wheat and feed grain programs, according to the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASA) Office.

Paymenst will continue to be made as rapidly as farmers continue to certify program compliance, and as fast as records can be processed through computers at the Data Processing Center in New Orleans and checks returned to the County ASCS Office for distribution.

The bulk of payments should be made by mid-August if farmers who signed up complete the necessary certification indicating that they have complied with all of the program provisions.

The County Office pointed out that these payment to farmers have an impact on the entire community because most of the money remains in the local area where farmers pay for the things they need to buy. Participation by producers in farm programs helps even out the year-by-year flow of farm products to market, which also helps stabilize food and fiber prices, a benefit to consumers, he said.

Farmers earn payments by diverting part of their cropland to conservation uses. This helps keep a balance between supply and demand for food and fiber, preserves the excess acres for future use when they are needed, and provides an orderly supply of farm products to consumers.

Dear Abby

Tenants' Lives Private

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I rent out part of our home to make ends meet. We have had so much trouble with tenants that we were really pleased when two quiet, well-mannered university students rented our rooms. Everything was fine, until one day my wife decided that they were homosexuals. She had no "proof," just a certain feeling. I told her I thought she was nuts because they are both very masculine looking.

Recently while cleaning their room, my wife found several physical culture magazines, featuring male models. I warned her that this kind of snooping was against the law and the magazines didn't prove anything. She claims she wasn't snooping, but that we could get into trouble with the police if the boys were arrested, because even tho homosexuality between two consenting adults is not a crime in Canada, these boys are minors. I don't want to lose these tenants and I don't want to treat them unfairly on the grounds of suspicion either. Is there any way to tell for sure if the boys are homosexuals? And if they are, what is our legal position?

CANADIAN LANDLORD

DEAR LANDLORD: The only way for you to find out conclusively whether these boys are for girls or each other is to ask them. (I don't recommend it as it's none of your business.)

Your "legal position" is not affected by the sexual preferences of your tenants so long as their activities are not harmful to others on the premises. If the boys are homosexuals, they have to live some place, and as long as they are good citizens and good tenants, you have no basis for concern.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Please tell Helen, the Roman Catholic woman who was in love with a divorced Lutheran, that she DOES NOT have to give up her religion to marry him, and here is why:

The Roman Catholic Church does not recognize his marriage as a lawful marriage, hence Helen can marry this Lutheran man in her Roman Catholic Church. And since his marriage is not valid, his divorce means nothing to the Catholic Church. In other words, this Lutheran is and always was a free man, so he is free to marry her. Ask any Catholic priest if you think I am steering you wrong.

INFORMED

DEAR INFORMED: I felt certain that you were "MISINFORMED"—but I asked a Catholic priest anyway. Helen is NOT free to marry her divorced Lutheran lover. In the eyes of the Catholic Church he is indeed married and divorced. (P.S. If it's any comfort to you, yours is a common misconception.)

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am disturbed about the letter you received from parents of the junior honor student in college who quit because of pregnancy. Tho the man involved was a graduate student uninterested in marriage because it "didn't fit into his plans," the families' "clergyman" advised they use the story that the daughter's "husband" went to Vietnam and upon returning was so changed that she divorced him.

I wholeheartedly commend you for denouncing the "clergyman's" advice!

Please tell your readers to reject the counsel of such men when it contradicts the Holy Scriptures. A lie is a lie! God hates it! When "blind" leaders are followed, all fall into the ditch.

This is my 15th year as a pastor. It is sickening to know there are so-called "clergymen" who themselves are not "men of God"—honest and courageous. No wonder people are confused and going astray.

Very sincerely,
Marvin D. Price, pastor
First United Brethren Church
Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

Q—How does touch football differ from regular football?

A—It differs in that the ball carrier can be "downed" merely by touching him. It can be played by any number of players and on a field of almost any size.

Q—What is the literal meaning of Mardi Gras?

A—It is a French term meaning "fat Tuesday." The term arose from the custom of parading a fat ox through the streets of Paris on Shrove Tuesday.

• • •

Q—Does chlorophyll have any counterpart in an animal?

A—Its chemical formula is the same as blood—with one tiny difference. Instead of the atom of magnesium, blood has an atom of iron.

• • •

Q—How did the confection marshmallow receive its name?

A—Because it was originally made from the spongy root of the swamp plant named marsh mallow.

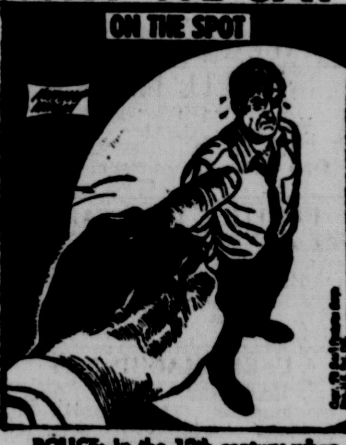
WHY WE SAY



POLICE: In the 19th century when police used different methods of questioning than are condoned today, the suspect was told to stand on a certain spot on the floor. Interrogators would then try to make him confess by long-term questioning.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's important Full Moon suggests you concentrate more upon the artistic, less on the conventional. Otherwise quick action of an adverse nature could follow extravagance, poor judgment. Follow your intuitions. Thinking art, music, culture can aid you greatly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid that associate who is too domineering. Carry through with the ideas of a bigwig, one that you believe in. You can get ahead in business if you don't permit a partner to deter your actions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put new ideas to work and step out of that rut. You can get the information you need by going to the right sources. Do so quietly and efficiently.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The Full Moon brings to light many things you have not completed. Use tact to convince higher-ups you were a little lax. Do whatever pleases mate later. Be true to yourself.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Know what is expected of you by associates. Don't permit kin to interfere in your pleasing them. Make those arrangements early and follow through. Relax with hobbies tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Add color and efficiency to home, office or other area of your operations on this day. Take care of health problems as well. Be sure you pay that bill you have been putting aside.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to have a good time today. Get into something a little different and put a new spark into your life. Develop more interest in hobbies you are lukewarm about. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Situations at home can be straightened by listening to what others have to say. Cooperate with them. Don't try to force others to do what you want. Make it easy on yourself and get right results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't allow personal friend to keep you from doing important work. Put those ideas you get in a practical category.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have money worries that keep you thinking. This is fine since you can swing things in your favor. Be sure you pay important bills early. Don't let the Full Moon make you forget them. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A higher-up wants you to do things his way, but you and allies know it's not right. Carry through with own ideas. Get into personal recreations. Have delightful repartee with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget that so-called expert who has an eye on your assets. Use your own good judgment about whatever you want to do. Follow your intuition. Get all of your affairs organized properly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Follow through with fine plan a good friend has to offer. It will surely make all of your affairs more successful. Entertain socially and show gratitude for past favors. Be charitable.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those perceptive young people who should build up the intellectual also through right study. This life can become a true force for good and much success is possible early in life. Anything of a musical or artistic nature is fine here, also in the field of decoration and personal adornment. Send to specialized showplace schools. Stress the spiritual in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for August is now ready. For a copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast, c-o The Daily Freeman, Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You certainly would be wise to doublecheck whatever commitments you make. Be sure they are exactly as you wish them to be. Troubles could develop if you are careless or negligent or even overlook some apparently small point in an agreement with another. Charm all socially.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure you are most courteous with good pals since they can be a great assistance to you. Give them credit for good work. New aims should be studied very carefully before you get wheels rolling.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what higher-up has to say so you can become more successful in near future. Don't take any chances with credit or you could get into a lot of trouble. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get out to the new places and with new peronsalities who can make your life more interesting and more profitable as well. Gain the goodwill of wise persons. Put ingenuity to work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have committed yourself to certain responsibilities that need to be handled wisely. Be objective in so doing. Don't cross up one of whom you are fond. Forget pettiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) An associate is not acting in usual manner, so make it your business to find out why. But don't act forceful in any way. Show tact. Put that magnetic smile to work and dissolve all opposition.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put Your motto "I SERVE" to work. Do much for those who have been good to you in the past. Be sure to do whatever improves your health, also. Avoid spending too much money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be charming with everyone you contact today. Be with people you admire and where you get respite from tensions. Get an early start. Take mate along with you. Increase happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't force others to do what you want at home or you get into a big argument. Listen to what they have to say and solve matters sensibly Cooperation make the future more harmonious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Come to a better understanding with associates so future is scheduled more intelligently and efficiently. Some changes are necessary. Be willing to go along with them now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Sit down with financial expert today and find out how to get ahead faster. Analyze financial position accurately. Get a better budget worked out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Listen to what a straight-thinking ally has to say or there could be a serious altercation arising. Dress in fine style before you meet those important persons. Show you have good taste.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do some investigating so you know exactly where you are headed. Be sure you help someone who is having rough sledding. Show generosity.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be one of those charming people who will have every opportunity to come to a fine understanding with others because of his willingness to cooperate. Teach to speak and act so others do not take offense. There is much success possible in his chart in the field that is best suited to your fine progeny, which could be selling, manufacturing, etc.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Eddie's Father Underrated

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I'm beginning to think that ABC-TV's "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" is one of television's most underrated series. In fact, I'm sure of it.

I've been watching some reruns of the show this summer, and I suggest you do also to see how a so-called "situation comedy" can be quietly civilized and gentle, particulary in its contemporary attitude toward the relationship of a father and his young son.

The fact is that, although "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" is technically classified as a situation comedy, it is a bit more than that—not heavy stuff certainly, but an entertainingly cool and intelligent piece of light, human fare.

The series is based originally on a movie of the same name, concerning a small boy who tries to find a wife for his father (Glenn Ford). In the television adaptation, the Glenn Ford part is taken over by Bill Bixby.

And although the boy in the series (Brandon Cruz) is also dedicated to seeking out a wife for his widowed father, this is merely the running thread—a sort of light underpinning—for a program that is essentially about a man and a boy. And this relationship is what makes it unique and often nicely touching.

The way Bixby and young Mr. Cruz get along on an acting basis is altogether charming. They are so real in their attitudes and affection toward each other that they frequently seem to be an actual father and son.

And, as their housekeeper, Miyoshi Umeki is a fine part of the regular cast—never too obvious, yet a mature, occasional mother substitute for Master Cruz. The notion that Miss Umeki could well be the wife that the young man is seeking for his father is always softly present, but is never pushed hard. It is just that Miss Umeki's understated presence is, as always, gently potent.

I liked one program in which the young boy frankly decides he doesn't care much for his grandmother — his father's mother. She is, in fact, pretty definitely a pain. And Bixby is nicely understanding about it, for his chief loyalty is to his son.

The show's lilting, delightful musical score, by the way, is sung and composed by the important young pop artist Harry Nilsson. Like most everything else on the program, it has tasteful values.

Bridge

To Err Is Human: Take Advantage

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Parkinson's first law for bridge players is that any time you give a man a chance to make a mistake there is a distinct probability that he will make it.

Of course, there are plenty of players who just make mistakes without any real reason. East wasn't one of that group. In fact, he was one of the top players of the late '30s playing a rubber bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club.

South was the late Edward Hymes Jr., one of the great players of the day. Eddy found himself in rather a normal six no-trump contract that presented better than an even chance for success. Specifically, he needed a successful diamond finesse, which represented an even chance, but there was a possibility of a defensive error if the finesse lost.

Eddy won the heart lead with the queen. Then he went right after diamonds so as to keep the exchange of information between East and West at a minimum.

He made the proper lead of a low diamond. West showed out but Eddy didn't falter at all. He rose with dummy's ace and led a low diamond right back.

This gave East quite a problem. His partner had signaled with the eight of spades on the first diamond lead. That signal clearly indicated that he held either the ace or the king, but which one was it?

If it were the ace, East could and should take that diamond right away. If it were the king, the play was to duck and keep diamond control. East would have known what to do if the problem arose later on, at that time he didn't know what to do and went wrong.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Freeman City Hall Reporter

FLASH: Earl Gedney, Ed and Marcia Palladino label City Beat columnist "a jinx."

Earl lives at 60 Merritt Avenue. Ed and Marcia recently moved into 29 Fairview Avenue. Both are in the neighborhood of what will now be the Hess Apartments after Tuesday's 10-2 approval by the Common Council.

Didn't that guy predict that the vote would be 9-4 or 8-5, defeating the apartments?

He sure did! Boo . . . Hiss . . . Jinx . . .

First of all, we don't think our prediction had anything to do with the eventual outcome We guessed too early. Indications are now that the apartments were indeed defeated a week before the vote but that victory was snatched within hours, or perhaps minutes before the Tuesday night meeting.

We had based our prediction on a 13-member Council with Brian Smith, Third Ward Republican, possibly out on vacation.

Ten votes were needed for passage, regardless of who was there. We figured John Machione, the Second Ward Republican, as a solid no vote for openers. The word going around was that Cliff Sinsabaugh, the 10th Ward Democrat and Eddie Roux, the Ninth Ward Republican were also against it. That made it 10-3, assuming a full Council. No one seemed to know how Bernie Sims, the 13th Ward Republican was going to go or John Heitzman, the First Ward Democrat.

Logically, with upwards of 200 irate citizens in his ward opposed to the apartments, Heitzman should have been a solid "no." It is not considered wise to try to predict Heitzman's moves.

Monday, the aldermen met to haggle about the Jack in the Box Traffic Legislation (more about that later) with three aldermen missing: Smith on vacation (he must be on the moon), Sims and Mike Perry, Seventh Ward Democrat, out sick.

If that situation had held, only 10 aldermen would have been at the Tuesday night meeting, thus leaving Machione in the cat-bird seat. His vote would have killed it. John should be so lucky.

The word from the Democrats Monday night was "don't see how we can pass it. It's going down. Good grief." We saw Don Quick, the chairman of the Laws and Rules Committee, sponsors of the legislation, at the assessor's office on Tuesday morning. He didn't look or sound confident.

As they say in the mystery movies . . . "little did we know . . ." that the issue was just about settled at that point.

Sinsabaugh and Roux were now solid "yes votes." Whether they had, in fact, ever been "no" votes is not known and may never be known.

Now there was Heitzman and Sims. It had been our impression that Heitzman was in favor of the apartments and if necessary, would have voted for them. It didn't become necessary.

The situation was this. The party leaders had to know how Sims was going to vote before the meeting. Sims, naturally, wasn't talking.

The way they found out was both clever and legal . . . two committee reports, one for the apartments and one against. Sims signed the one for the apartments a half hour before the meeting.

It was explained that the Laws and Rules Committee hadn't had a chance to caucus before the meeting thus two committee reports were prepared "to save time." As we said, clever and legal.

That took the pressure off Heitzman sitting in the first seat and of course, voting first. He could vote against the apartments with fairly good assurance that the other ten votes were in the bag.

Heitzman's speech reflected the "fence" he'd been sitting on "for three years." Heitzman spent most of his speech praising the apartments and citing the need for them. We thought for awhile that he was going to vote for them.

But in the end, he said no and all John Machione could do was agree with him. The roof fell in after that as ten straight aldermen voted for the apartments. One vote among those ten would have killed it but of course that was all taken into consideration.

NOTES ON HESS: One thing appears certain, there is no solid Republican minority. John Machione, the minority leader, speaks for John Machione and no one else. A straight party vote would have beaten the apartments. Old time Republicans must be spinning in the ground.

Harry Thayer, local sage of the airways, showed up and gave a speech in favor of the apartments. He had promised a 21-gun salute to the Council (on the radio) if they voted for it. Harry was true to his word. He symphathized with Heitzman and blasted Machione for "selling out."

Harry, check Page One in Basic Politics. Sellout means changing one's vote. Machione has never changed his vote.

Bernie Sims bounced back from what was believed to be a 24-hour virus on Monday and went back to work Tuesday at noon. Remarkable guy, that Bernie.

Bernie not only bounces back, he bounces up when the occasion demands it. That occasion arose (as did Bernie) on Wednesday night at the Arterial meeting in city hall when a resident challenged any alderman who was in favor of the highway to stand up and say so.

Bernie did, and told the guy, "I'm not going to tell you how I'm going to vote but I will tell you this. I will investigate this issue and give it my most careful consideration. You'll know my vote when I cast it." The applause was well deserved.

Mayor Koenig's reply to the passage of the apartments across the street from his house: "I'll have a statement in a few days."

This thing came up three years ago when Koenig was alderman-at-large. Surely he kept abreast of news from his neighbors on the project . . .

"I'll have a statement in a few days." Man, that's leadership.

JACK IN THE BOX—From time to time people ask us the definition of a good alderman. Usually we say Pete Mancuso (the 12th Ward Democrat).

Of course, no one is perfect and we still think Pete is top shelf but we also think he blew it on this Jack in the Box traffic deal.

By way of background, the aldermen at their regular meeting passed legislation calling for the moving of the walk indicator light and cross walk lines five to eight feet up Broadway. Presumably, it had been checked out. Mancuso usually checks things out, he's chairman of the traffic committee.

Not this time. A tour was made the next day and it was found that the legislation created a traffic hazard. New legislation drawn up and approved at a special session on Monday.

We'll say one thing for Mancuso: he didn't pass the buck and try to blame the planning board or the city engineer who made the original recommendation. It was his cross and he knew it. Pete may not be batting a thousand any more but he still has class.

WELCOME HOME—Bob Gallo, the alderman-at-large, is normally a jovial guy (aren't most politicians?) but for the past month or so he's been on the quiet side. With good reason, his father, Tom had been in Benedictine Hospital. The senior Gallo is now home at Jarvis Street fully recovered, the junior Gallo tells us. We could use more of that kind of news.

Royal Couple Dances to Wee Hours

Swinging Time at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne danced into the early hours today on the White House lawn as President and Mrs. Nixon watched from a darkened balcony.

Two rock bands, the Marine band, and a midnight fireworks display filled the area with sound and made the last night of the royal pair's visit to the United States one to remember.

The two wind up their visit today with a tour by Charles of a wildlife research center and an afternoon baseball game. Charles also will meet with Nixon during the afternoon. Charles and Anne are scheduled to leave for London at 8:45 p.m. EDT.

It was almost 2:30 a.m. EDT before the prince and the princess, the Nixon children and some 550 guests called it a night.

Charles Escorts Tricia

Charles began the night by dancing his first three dances with Nixon's blonde daughter Tricia, and they spent much of the evening together. The music varied from rock and roll to more romantic foxtrot rhythms.

Music was provided by a top Canadian group, the Guess Who, and by Californian Gary Puckett's combo, the Union Gap, as well as the Marine band. In tribute to the President, Puckett sang a patriotic number, "The House I Live In."

The President and the first lady watched the dinner dance from the Truman balcony overlooking the large lighted pavilion, set up on the large yard behind the White House.

Aides said that at one point Nixon told his wife, "It's a beautiful night. There's even a full moon."

Firewor^ks, Protests

The evening began on a low key note with an official receiving line and other formalities. But it took on a more lively tone when Charles began to dance with Tricia, and David Eisenhower asked Anne to join him on the dance floor, which was brilliantly lighted by 8,000 small bulbs.

A cheer was raised by the guests at midnight, when a loud and brilliant fireworks display began, capped by a finale that sent a large mushroom cloud rising from the White House lawn and prompted some local residents to call asking if something had happened.

Two protest groups picketed the White House during the dance—a group of American Indians who said the Nixons had invited only "lily white" people to the dance, and the Concerned Mothers for Peace, a Boston group.

Earlier Friday, the royal pair put in a full day of hectic sightseeing in the sweltering Washington heat. Anne showed some of her athletic spunk when she hitched a brief ride in a speedboat while on a cruise on the presidential yacht down the Potomac to Mount Vernon.

Girl Lives to Describe Friend's Killer

CHICAGO (UPI) — The scrawled notes of a pretty California teen-ager, unable to speak because her throat was slashed by an assailant, were the main leads today in the search for the man who killed her roommate.

Police said the killer, described by the girl as "a black man with a natural (Afro-style haircut)," apparently waited in their hotel room and attacked the girls as they returned one by one from a party.

Patti Iwataki, 18, of Los Angeles, found her two roommates late Thursday. She told police Evelyn Okubo, 18, was lying naked in a partly-filled bathtub, her hands and feet bound with what appeared to be drapery cord, her throat cut.

Ranko Carol Yamada, 17, was standing in the middle of the room, her feet bound by the same kind of cord but her hands free, bleeding from the neck with signs of a frantic struggle around her, Miss Iwataki said.

The three girls were staying together during a week-long Japanese-American Citizens League convention. Many of the 400 participants in the convention began leaving Friday but Palmer House Hotel spokesmen said other guests were not checking out in large numbers.

Many of the junior members of the convention, girls and boys from around the nation, spent the night huddled in blankets on the floor of a convention meeting room.

Miss Yamada, a high school honor graduate from Stockton, Calif., who planned to study social work in college, was reported in fair condition today, recuperating from intensive surgery on her neck wound.

Doctors said Miss Yamada "missed death by a fraction of an inch." They said the killer's knife severed her windpipe but missed her jugular vein.

Police said they questioned the girl while she still was under sedation Friday and put together the best description they have had of the killer. They said she cannot speak but wrote out some details to their questions. They would not release a detailed description of the killer.

Ferncliff Nursing Home— Groundbreaking Anticipated

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

The architects for the planned new 320-bed Ferncliff Nursing Home on River Road estimate that groundbreaking will begin in another "four or five weeks, if we're lucky."

John Nadalin, associated with Belfatto and Pavarini of New York City, told The Freeman this week that "about 90 per cent of the construction documents" have been filed and accepted.

Borings were made on the site, near the present Ferncliff Home, in May. Construction hopefully will be completed early in 1972.

Plans to supply the mammoth new geriatric home with water from the Village of Rhinebeck's station on the Hudson River were solidified in early June. Village Mayor Peter F. Sipperley estimated at that time that the village's annual water revenue from the new Ferncliff Home would be about $12,000, benefitting the admittedly high rates for present users.

The five-story structure will of course be outfitted with elevators, and there will be no steps involved outdoors, with ramps to be used extensively, according to Nadalin.

The spokesman also said that accommodations will be primarily private rooms for the several hundred aged who will occupy what will be one of the largest facilities of its type in the Hudson Valley.

The present Ferncliff, formerly the Vincent Astor estate, is administered by Mother M. Edmund Francis Teresa, a registered nurse with special training in rehabilitation and geriatric care, and is conducted by the Carmelite Sisters.

This order, founded some 40 years ago in New York and now numbering about 500 members, administers 30 nursing homes and homes for the aged throughout the United States, as well as two in Europe.

It has been estimated that more than 100 employees, including the Sisters, will be needed in many occupations at the home. Most of this would have to be obtained at the local level. There are five Sister's presently at Ferncliff, but the Motherhouse and Novitiate of the Carmelite Sisters is at Germantown, only about 15 minutes drive from the home.

The center issued a statement which said that people of all creeds, ethnic and social backgrounds and financial abilities will be accepted.

While the building of a new Ferncliff Home has long been planned at Archdiocese headquarters in New York City, the Nursing Home Companies Law was not passed until 1966 in New York State. This makes low interest loans available for the construction of nursing homes under the direction of the State Department of Health.

Plans have been approved by the state for Ferncliff, and it will be the recipient of a loan of approximately $8 million.

Jail Physician Resigns; Charges No Cooperation

KINGSTON

Dr. Sidney C. Pauker, Ulster County Jail physician, is resigning his post at the end of the month.

The Kingston physician told The Freeman Friday afternoon that he had already notified Sheriff William B. Martin and the county's Sheriff's Committee.

Dr. Pauker made a similar move last year but was persuaded to stay in the post which he has held on a part time basis for the past 15 years.

Last December, the doctor stated he would resign in midmonth "unless someone in our county takes on this problem with seriousness of purpose and shows me concrete ways to handle problems concerning treatment of prisoners with active mental illness and those under the influence of drugs."

Dr. Pauker said his chief concern is in seeing that an arrested person's condition be evaluated medically before he is jailed. Specifically he asked that mentally disturbed individuals be admitted to a hospital-like facility for two to five days before definitely being imprisoned.

In revealing his present resignation Dr. Pauker said it was prompted by the fact that the problem remains the same today as it did last December. He said that what is needed is someone at the jail to determine which prisoners need medical help and which ones do not.

Sheriff Martin told The Freeman that he is sorry to see Dr. Pauker leave his position and feels the county could have done more to make the position more attractive for "such a dedicated person." The sheriff praised Dr. Pauker for being on call 24 hours a day every day.

He said that efforts are now being made to secure someone to replace him.

New Name For Sing Sing Prison:

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Remember all those old gangster movies—with snarling convicts like George Raft or Jimmy Cagney busting out of Sing Sing Prison's death house?

They don't make that kind of movie these days, and maybe it's just as well. For one thing, there isn't any Sing Sing Prison anymore.

The high-walled penitentiary is still doing business on the banks of the Hudson River north of New York City. But, as of July 8, it was given a new name.

The state government now is calling it the Ossining Correctional Facility—after the community in which it's located.

Notice that it's not only changed from Sing Sing, but it's not even to be called a prison anymore.

The two-fold change in name resulted from a new state law that revamped New York's penal system to put more emphasis on the more positive aspect of prison confinement—rehabilitation of convicts.

As part of the new approach, all state prisons and reformatories were redesignated as "correctional facilities" and wardens were given the new title of "superintendent." Prison guards previously had been retitled "correction officers."

Correction Commissioner Paul D. McGinnis explained that the terms "prison" and "warden" were scrapped because they had acquired astigma, conjuring up the notion of punishment rather than efforts to channel convicts into more useful lives.

Of the state's 21 penal institutions, Sing Sing was the only one whose name did not reflect its geographical location in one way or another. So, McGinnis said, he decided to change it to Ossining and, at the same time, dim the prison's legend of notoriety.

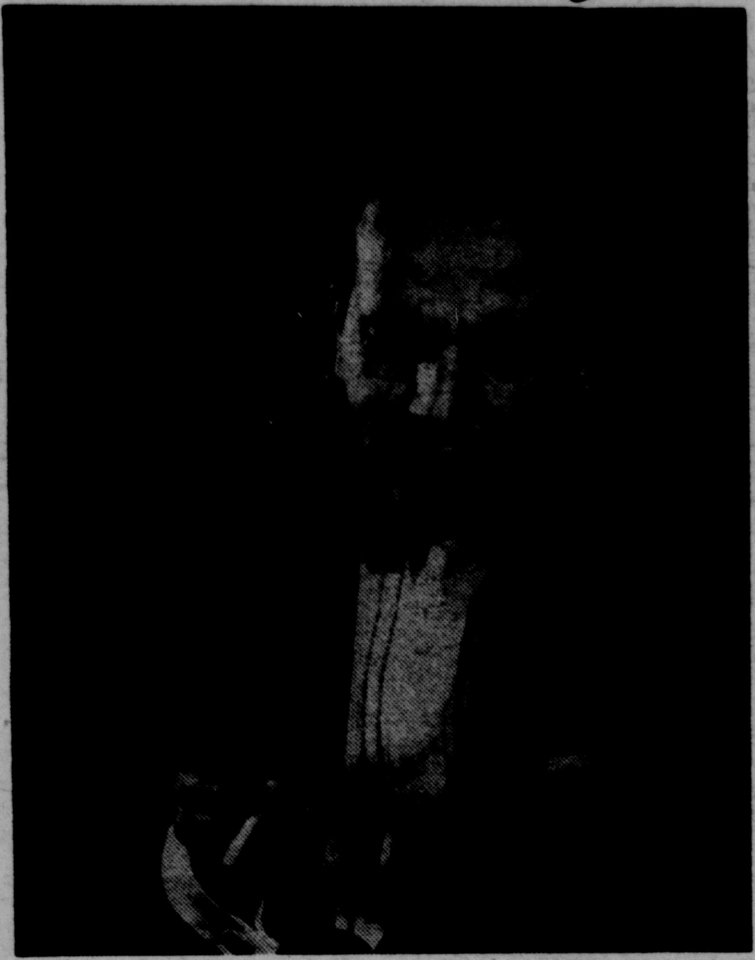
Full Week's TV Listing From July 19 Thru July 25

An Amiable Neurotic Is a 'Hung-Up' Hero In Allen's Comedy

JACKIE VERNON, called the funniest new comedian of them all by Jack Paar, plays the part Woody Allen wrote about himself for himself in "Play It Again, Sam."



BOGEY LOOKALIKE Bob Sacchi impersonates Humphrey Bogart in the comedy romp that comes in as the fifth production of the season at Hyde Park Playhouse.

Audiences can always count on having fun at any play authored by comedian-actor-playwright screenwriter Woody Allen. And since "Play It Again, Sam" is probably his best effort, play-goers won't want to miss the laughs when that frantic comedy turns up at the Hyde Park Playhouse next week.

"Play It Again, Sam" opens July 20 over in Hyde Park for a run through July 25. In the starring role (as an amiable neurotic who has been dumped by his wife) will be Jackie Vernon, one of the brightest stars on the comedy horizon.

Vernon, saved from retiring from show business after a rocky start in nightclubs after a pep talk from Danny Kaye, promises to be brilliant in the part of the poor, sadsack hero who acts out psycho-sexual hang-ups through fantasies.

Tops on TV

A veteran of engagements at such top niteries as Chicago's Playboy Club, New York's Blue Angel and San Francisco's hungry i, the very funny Vernon should excel as the deserted husband who takes refuge in his richly fantasized nightmare world. With a wide following from his appearances on such television shows as those hosted by Steve Allen, Jack Paar, Ed Sullivan and Johnny Carson, he comes to Hyde Park with praise from his peers. Jack Paar lauded him as the funniest new comedian of them all, and Bob Hope called him "the greatest talent I've ever seen."

Vernon is genuinely and originally funny; should be wild and wacky in "Play it Again, Sam." as the zany, clownlike and wistful non-hoero.

One of the top roles in the play — and one that calls for brilliance — is the part calling for an impersonation of Humphrey Bogart. The rough, tough lover of Hollywood's heyday is conjured up by Vernon whenever he needs advice on wooing one of the numerous young ladies he courts after his abandonment.

Bogey will be portrayed in the Hyde Park production by a startling lookalike. That would be Bob Sacchi, who once attended John Garfield's public school alma mater but took to the night club circuit in a routine on Bogart.

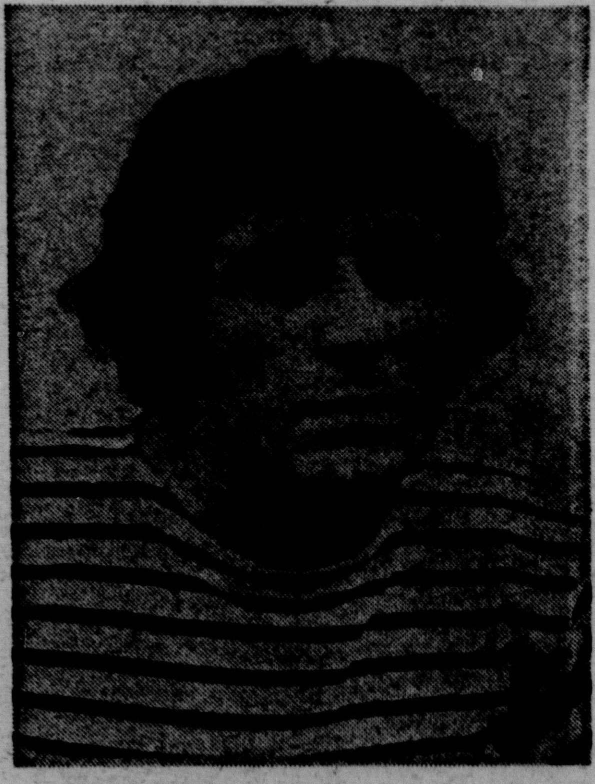
Sacchi has been seen on various TV daytime serials and on talk shows. He's also appeared on radio shows and in feature films, industrials and commericals.

A Pert Heroine

Among the various and sundry women in Vernon's stage life will be pert Anne Linden, a veteran of more than a dozen off-Broadway plays. After landing the plum role in the Chicago company of Norman Mailer's Deer Park, she was tapped for films; was seen most recently as George Segal's model in "Loving." She'll be seen soon in lead roles in two upcoming movies, "We Three" and "All American Honeymoon."

"Play It Again, Sam" is one of those all too rare, a laugh every other second comedies. With a talented cast, headed by the inimitable Jackie Vernon, it should be a socko success for the Hyde Park Playhouse as the new Eddie Bracken enterprise approaches the mid-season mark.

Loosely Based On 'The Bard'



SEAN GRIFFIN displays his comic talent as a crazy cop in the Feiffer work at Woodstock. "Murders" will be followed on the art colony stage by the musical, "Your Own Thing."

TOM CRAWLEY is drawing audience applause currently at Woodstock Playhouse as a dun-colored drop-out in "Little Murders," the play penned by celebrated cartoonist Jules Feiffer.

It'll be the first musical of the season at Woodstock Playhouse, and what a musical it'll be!

"Your Own Thing," the bright show that took top honors as the toast of Off-Broadway this past year, comes to the art colony stage on July 21 for a run of two weeks, ending Aug. 2. By Hal Hester and Danny Apolinar, it's a rousing musical (partly rock)—and based ever so loosely on "Twelfth Night" by William Shakespeare.

Culling from The Bard, it revolves around a plot of confused identity. When a sister and brother get separated by shipwreck, the girl decides to pretend she's a boy. Believing her brother has drowned, she's sure her assumed role will stand her in good stead in the strange land in which she finds herself alone.

Love's Strange Turns

By play's end, the girl (Viola) is reunited with her lost brother, much to the relief of a boy named Orson, who's been worried about his possible latent tendencies since he finds himself in love with the sister-turned-brother.

What makes "Your Own Thing" a striking musical is its stunning use of psychedelic color, bombarding the stage along with off-beat projections. In style, it is one of the most original musicals to come along in years and, as entertainment, it excels.

In the Woodstock production, twins Viola and Sebastian will be played by Brenda Gardner and Raymond Baron. Del Green and Rick Gardner have been cast as Olivia and Orson. Adding to the all-around fun will be the grooviest on-stage rock group anywhere. That would be the Apocalypse, featuring Jon Stevens, Sid Marshall and Ronnie Hall. Appearing as the stage manager and the nurse will be the very funny Louis Smadbeck and Jennie Ventriss.

Directing the production with dynamic flair will be Harold Baldridge, with Richard Start in charge of musical direction. To David L. Taylor will go praise for the far-out, tuned-in sets, and lighting designer Ronald Wallace will be called upon to create those really wild light environments. Marci Heiser has whipped up the costumes to add to this brilliantly off-beat production.

"Murders" Currently

Meanwhile, audiences at Woodstock are still being treated to "Little Murders," a hit of the recent New York season by popular cartoonist Jules Feiffer. "Murders" can be seen tonight and again Sunday evening. It boasts mordantly witty dialogue and a satiric massacre of American conformity as only Feiffer could view that subject. Taken over the coals with humor and intelligence are such topics as far-out religious sects, sex deviationists and police inefficiency in the U.S. of A.

In "Murders," Feiffer puts his finger on the psychic wounds of the nation just as he does in his urbane cartoons. Cast as members of his ordinary American family in "Murders" are Jane Lloyd-Jones as the mother, Stan Edelman as the father, Carol Emshoff as the daughter, and Tom Crawley as her betrothed.

For reservations for "Murders" and "Your Own Thing," call the Playhouse at 679-2015.

Lantern Slides The 'Junkman' Wouldn't Take

By NANCY SULLIVAN

A photograph is a "portrayal, description or mental picture or image characterized by great truth of representation of minute detail in reproduction."

In other words, a photograph tells a story . . . and a collection of rare, old photographs dating back to the 1860's provides historical as well as cultural significance of a past era. Such a collection belongs to Walter Byer of Mountain Road, Rosendale.

Byer has a collection of more than 2,000 "lantern slides" of pictures from all over the world. He also possesses a collection of pictures handpainted on glass.

The Junkman Refused

The collection was found in the cellar of his mother's home in the Bronx. At the time she was planning on moving, and being unaware of the value of the photographs, tried to pay a junkman to tote them away. However, he balked at the prospect and Byer and his wife salvaged the collection. To date, they have spent about a year and a half researching each picture. Byer said the collection belonged to his father and previously to his grandfather. It was also learned that Nathan Dodge, the brother of Grenville Dodge, chief engineer in the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad,

NUDITY PLAYS A BIG ROLE in "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls." Russ Meyer, producer and director of the film, is shown here fleshing out a scene with Dolly Read and Michael Blodgett. "Dolls" is the current attraction at the local Sunset Drive-In, along with "Lady in Cement."

MOVIES

"Z"

This passionate and detailed study of political assassination and of the death of virtue is the finest foreign-language film of this or any other year. For adults, it is excellent fare—combining an absorbing suspense story with a cry for justice that makes it a documentary thriller of brilliance.

Based on the historical record of the assassination of a political liberal in Greece in 1963, "Z" is that rarity...a fine ideological film. Unlike many political movies, which tend toward the newsreel category, this film is more an adventure story—an adventure in Athens against the system that is the present Greek government.

The death of he who gets assassinated (Yves Montand as a physician-politician) is made to look by its right-wing perpetrators, like a traffic accident. Leaving an anti-military rally, he is clubbed and run down by a truck. His death is not only not an accident, but a harbinger of the dictatorship to come.

Sun Drenched Nightmare

The Greece of today comes through in this movie as a nightmare place in the sun, filled with corruption. The ironies of this film hit hard, mainly because its plot unfolds in the birthplace of democracy. There is a stark finality in the political murder and exile defined in the story. The characters are moved like men on a chessboard, and justice is denied more by historical forces than by mere men.

As a work of art, "Z" is superlative. Simple, forceful and understated, it does not preach so much against tyranny as it reveals the lies on which tyranny is built.

The direction by Costa-Gravas is inspired, and there is a fine performance by Jean-Louis Trintignant as a judge who puts his career on the line. By all means, see this powerful film now at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Boys in the Band

It was Godfrey Cambridge who said that after films like "The Boys in the Band" and "Myra Breckinridge," they'll have to have a new Oscar category next year. He suggested Best Actor and Best Actress as usual, then the addition of Best Combination of the Last Two.

Comedian Cambridge had his joke, but what he failed to point out was that "The Boys in the Band" is a creatively well-done and highly valuable movie. Now showing at the Roosevelt in Hyde Park, it features a totally brilliant cast and some of the most incisive lines ever committed to celluloid. .

It is unabashedly about homosexuals, but it portrays them as human beings first and deviates second. By doing so humanely and movingly, it does much to help the public understand the gay life. And it is a breakthrough in that few of its characters have been forced to mince, flounce, or greet each other with limp wrists. The "boys" in the title come through not so much as homosexuals as they do a group of losers adjusting to their problems.

The Birthday Party

Set in Greenwich Village, it stars Kenneth Nelson as an edgy "queen" who is hosting a birthday party for his enemy, played by Leonard Frey. The guests are all gay, but they vary from muscular to effeminate. They all bring hang-ups to the party along with their gifts, and their inversions come through startlingly before the party and the hostility it breeds have come to an end. Each guest is dissected in turn, and one scene involving a telephone game is savage but illuminating.

Much care has gone into this film, and the fact that it is R-rated should not deter any adult. For it boasts a flawless cast that gives to this story of homosexuals a significant stature as comedy-drama.

Beyond the Valley Of the Dolls

Leave the kids at home if you simply must zoom off to the local Sunset Drive-In this week. Because "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls," the top billed feature there, has nothing in common with Raggedy Ann and Barbie.

What it does have is lots of girls...and many of them cavort in the nude. It also has homosexuals and drugs and sex. In fact, it seems to be attempting to prove that nudity is here to stay...whether it advances the story line or not.

Furthermore, the only thing this sequel to the $5 million "Valley of the Dolls" has in common with the first "Valley" is the title. Producer-director Russ Meyer (who gave up such exploitation films as "The Immoral Mr. Teas" and "The Vixen'') junked all the characters and locales of the first "Valley" on this project.

Instead of Barbara Parkins and Sharon Tate and Patty Duke (the leading ladies of "Valley" No. 1), this film has Dolly Read and Cynthia Myers and Marcia McBroom. None of the three have any claim to fame. Neither, when all is said and done, does this busy, boring film. It's like a pornographic comic strip that misses at trying to juggle its 12 leading characters, including a three-girl rock group.

Lady in Cement

Teamed with "Valley" at the Sunset is this typical wise-guy, action-and-dames mixture. A rerun, "Lady" stars Frank Sinatra as Tony Rome making the scene in Miami. It's terribly short on good dialogue, and its story concerns a dead blonde in cement.

In the cast with Sinatra are Raquel Welch, Richard Conte, Martin Gabel and Lainie Kazan.

Airport

Still going strong at Kingston's Mayfair after several weeks is "Airport," burgeoning with stars (Burt Lancaster, Dean Martin, Van Heflin, Helen Hayes, Jacqueline Bisset, George Kennedy, Dana Wynter, Jean Seberg, Barry Nelson, Barbara Hale, Maureen Stapleton) and packed with suspense. Blizzards, blocked runways, marriages on the rocks, pregnant stewardesses, mad bombers and exploding bombs make this a movie in the spectacular style. Great entertainment for a summer's night.

Other Choices

PAINT YOUR WAGON, holding forth at the local 9-W Drive-In, is a lusty, sprawling musical set in a mining camp during California Gold Rush days. Plot has Lee Marvin and Clint Eastwood sharing their gold claim and a wife (Jean Seberg) in perfect amity. A funny, irreverent script is a framework for the elaborately mounted broad comedy and a wealth of tunes.

CHANGE OF HABIT, co-featured at 9-W, is a typical Elvis Presley vehicle. Three Catholic nuns are permitted to conceal their religious identity, and discard their habits for contemporary dress for two months' work in a big city ghetto, under the guidance of Elvis as a dedicated doctor.

FUNNY GIRL, on screen at the Rosendale Theatre and the Starr in Rhinebeck, vibrates with Barbra Streisand's unique talent as singer and actress. She glowingly re-creates the personality of Fannie Brice in this lavish musical presentation of FRENCH ENTERTAINER Yves Montand, seen here clowning it up for a recent TV special, turns from song and dance to realistic drama in "Z," the film about a political assassination in modern day Greece. Excellent fare, it's now playing at Kingston's Community.

GENEVIEVE BUJOLD achieves star status in "Anne of the Thousand Days." As Anne Boleyn to Richard Burton's King Henry VIII, she gives a regal and fiery performance that is pure perfection. The historical drama is currently showing at Red Hook's Lyceum Theatre.

IN THIS SCENE FROM "AIRPORT," screen version of Arthur Hailey's best-seller, George Kennedy (R) is the cigar-chomping trouble shooter who gets a snow-grounded jetliner off the runway in the nick of time. The movie is now in its last week at Kingston's Mayfair.

For the Maverick

The Very Gifted Berkshire Quartet

Back from a recent and highly successful tour of Europe and the Middle East, the celebrated Berkshire String Quartet appears next at Woodstock's Maverick Concerts.

Score a coup for the Maverick (now in its 55th season) on this performance in Maverick Hall this Sunday, July 19 at 3 p.m. For the Berkshire Quartet is one of America's most accomplished chamber music groups; in residence at Indiana University during the school year, and at home at Music Mountain Center in Connecticut during the summer.

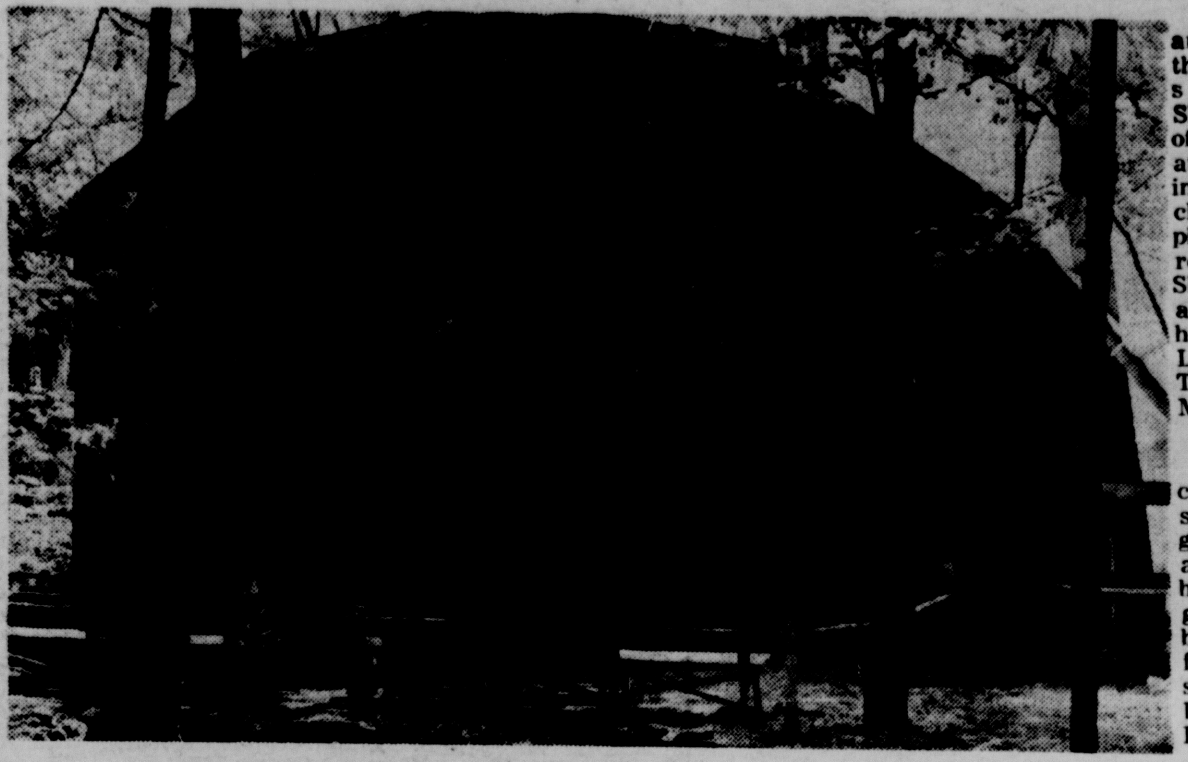
On the musical scene since 1948, the quartet has appeared in every leading music center in this country; has toured abroad; recorded often for Vox; made numerous TV appearances.

A Consummate Skill

All four Berkshire musicians are known as instrumentalists of the first rank. Four talented and gifted artists have merged their infinite musical gifts with consummate skill; play with smooth, well integrated and extraordinay beauty.

Widely acclaimed for their spirit and precision by major critics, they have been lauded for performances notable for their total refinement, coupled with vitality—along with delicate and expressive playing.

Included in the quartet are violinist Urico Rossi, cellist Fritz Magg, violinist Julius Hegyi, and violist Richard Skerlong. Rossi organized the Berkshire after studies at Juilliard, Yale and Eastman schools of music and after appearing as a member of the Gordon Quartet. He is a professor of violin at Indiana University and director of the Music Mountain Festival in Connecticut. Magg, a native of Vienna, studied at conservatories in Colonge, Berlin and Paris; began his distinguished soloist career with the Vienna Symphony. A former member of the Gordon Quartet, he is a professor of cello and chamber music at Indiana; plays a cello made by Stradivarius in 1698.



SCENE OF CONCERTS for the 55th year is historic and rustic Maverick Hall, set in the woods and boasting extraordinary acoustics. The season's series of concerts continues there this Sunday at 3 p.m. with a performance by the celebrated Berkshire String Quartet. (Photo by Fernando Valdivia)

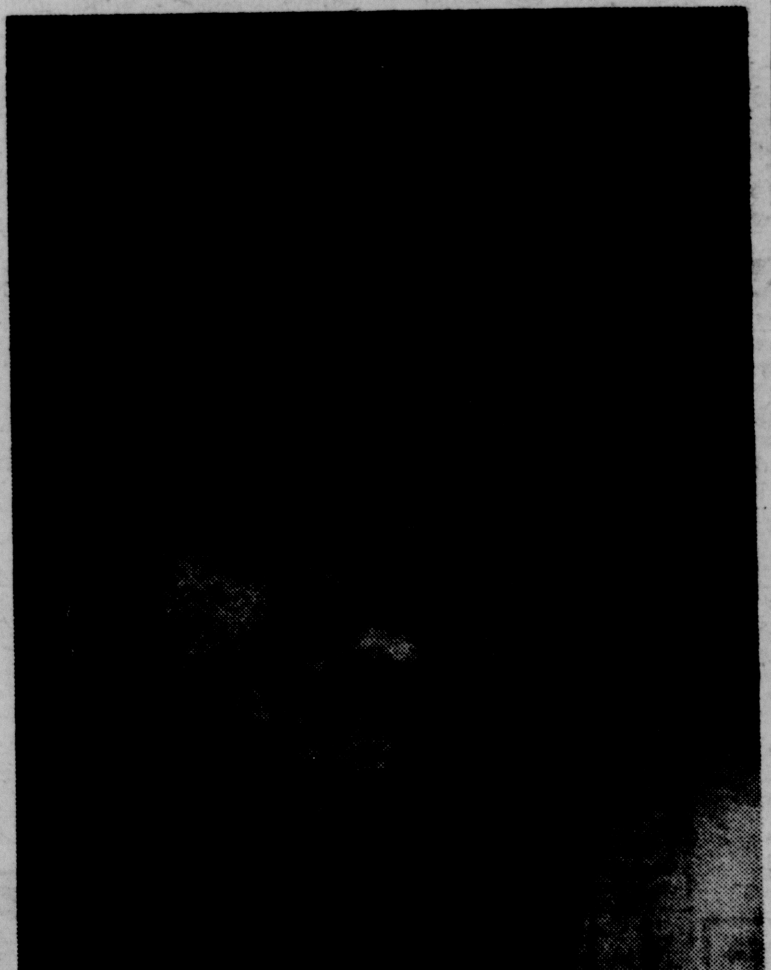
New to the quartet this year are Hegyi, once conductor of the Albany and Berkshire symphony orchestras, and Skerlong, now principal violist of the Seattle Symphony. Hegyi attended Juilliard; has toured internationally as soloist, chamber musician and symphonic conductor; is now in residence at Williams College. Skerlong, a graduate of Oberlin and Eastman schools of music, has been associated with the Louisville String Quartet, the Twin Cities Quartet, and the Minnesota Orchestra.

Guest Artist

This Sunday afternoon's concert will also feature mezzo soprano Zelda Menacher as guest artist. Much in demand as a recitalist, she has been heard as a soloist with chamber groups and in oratorios. Her beautiful voice will be a treat for Maverick patrons as she sings the song cycle "Bilitis" by American composer Anis Fuleihan.

This modern work will share the afternoon with such standard and classical pieces as Beethoven's Quartet in E and Haydn Quartet in D.

A gifted group of musicians, then . . . expected to draw a record crowd to the Maverick concert hall this Sunday. A distinguished performance is assured to provide a rare afternoon of beautiful music. For reservations, call 679-8257.



Chronicle of Class Struggle

JOAN SULLIVAN, one of the three cast members in "Miss Julie," plays Christine, the cook. "Julie," a Performing Arts of Woodstock production, directed by local artist Frank Alexander, has been taken from its original Sweden setting in the celebrated August Strindberg script; now weaves out its fate in the West Indies with an all black cast of characters, musicians and dancers. The unique drama can be seen tonight and tomorrow evening at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Route 212, just outside Woodstock on the Saugerties road. Curtain both nights is at 8:30, with tickets available at the door. For reservations, call 679-2114 or 679-9212. (Photo by Erik Van Cort).

Bluestone Comes Back

Not one—but two—locally conceived literary efforts get the welcome hand at a gala publication and autographing party today in Woodstock. The first issue of the literary magazine, Bluestone, in several years — along with a book combining photography, drawings and poetry and titled "The Finger of Light," have today as their official publication date.

In honor of the occasion, Twine's Catskill Bookshop, Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, is hosting a party this afternoon from 4 to 6 p.m.

Bluestone makes its reappearance with a wide variety of short stories and poetry by area authors and illustrations by local artists, including a special section devoted to the work of the late, celebrated Marion Greenwood. The Finger of Light highlights the talents of two Woodstockers: poet Loker Raley and photographer-artist Michael Esposito.

Both the magazine and book are being publised by Woodstock Creative Arts, Inc., founded last year and currently sponsoring a variety of endeavors from art shows to publishing. Poet Raley has edited the new Bluestone, as he did the previous issues.

Following today's autographing party, Woodstock Creative Arts will introduce the two publications to a wider audience via a special booth at the Woodstock Library Fair on July 24.

(Note: TEMPO will review the new issue of Bluestone and the Raley-Esposito picture-poetry work in an upcoming issue or issues.)

No Stranger to TV

Joe Higgins should be no stranger to the television audience in his regular role as a bossy parking lot guard on ABC's summer replacement series, "Johnny Cash Presents the Everly Brothers Show." He's the actor who attracted so much attention during the past season as that sheriff with the hominy grits accent on an automobile commercial.

FERRY BOAT TO BROOKLYN

Lantern Slides the 'Junkman'

owned some of the lantern slides. The National Archives have theorized that the collection might originally have belonged to some missionaries who used them to instruct the American Indians.

Byer explained that because of the rarity of the pictures. it is very difficult to pinpoint the exact dates. Locations of the places where the pictures were shot also had to be determined.

It is a remarkable discovery to witness history through pictures rather than words. as each picture tells a unique story. To see a photograph of the 1876 Paris World Fair, the 1876 Philadelphia Centennial. the original Grand Central Station in New York City, The Brooklyn Bridge in construction or Abraham Lincoln and his cabinet in front of the White House. creates an affinity with a world that would otherwise never be seen.

Also a part of the collection are etchings. one group a series on temperence. as well as old anatomy slides. slides of Bible songs and scenes depicted from the Bible.

Hopes for Museum

The photographs speak for themselves. No amount of explanation through an infinite number of words can do them justice. Byer has expectations of displaying his photographs so that they may be appreciated and enjoyed by all. perhaps through the establishment of a museum in the near future. However, a great deal of money has already been spent in research, cleaning the slides, reproducing the pictures from the original slides and framing them and it will take more capital to invest in a permanent structure to house these photographs.

Artistically. as well as educationally, mothers. fathers and children. the people who make history. today, will witness past history in the making through this rare and unique collection.

Orange County Fair To Open July 24th

Whoever you are, if you are looking for "your thing" chances are you will find it at the Orange County Fair, opening July 24 in Middletown.

From infant to senior citizen, the Orange County Fair will have something for everyone. From old-time county fair atmosphere to the sights and sounds of the 70's, it's all at the Fair's acres of fun.

For the horsey set, there is one of the country's largest horse shows operating every day in three horse rings. The best horses and riders compete for prizes and ribbons. Ribbons awarded at the Orange County Fair are among the most prized trophies a horseman can win.

For youngsters of all ages, the fair offers the Hanneford Circus, free every day afternoon and evening, from Sunday through Friday during Fair week. This spectacular show features fearless acrobats high over the spectators heads and high wire acts defying death at every show. Animal trainers will match wits with fierce jungle animals.

For fun and relaxation, there are miles of midway for fun and games, also an old-fashioned beer garden with music by radio personality Jimmy Sturr for dancing and listening.

For the jet-age speed lovers there is stock car racing every Saturday evening.

Thousands of exhibits feature the skills and hobbies of young and old, with many educational exhibits. And for the garden lovers, there is always the flower show that dazzles the eyes with an explosion of color.

FFA and 4-H youngsters will vie for prizes in the cattle judging tent, and many other agricultural events.

For the youngsters there are scores of merry-go-rounds, and for the more daring the roller coasters will evoke screams of delight.

There is something for everyone at the Orange County Fair which has been an annual attraction in Middletown for more than a century, running this year from July 24 through August 1.

July Marks Birthday of U.S. Postage Stamps

Stamps, Arkansas and some 32,000 other post offices marked a significant anniversary July 1 — the official birthday of U.S. postage stamps.

The issuance on July 1, 1847 of the first official U.S. stamps for prepayment of postage is recognized by historians as marking a significant postal reform and representing a milestone in the history of the U.S. Postal Service.

Earlier, postage for letters was collected from recipients under a system which resulted in losses when addressees refused to pay and one which raised a multitude of other problems arising out of this inefficient system of postal financing.

One of these was the fact that many mailers insisted on prepaying postage any way to make certain their letters would be delivered rather than refused. Such letters had to be marked as prepaid at the originating post office and some postmasters developed a kind of stamp of their own design — known to collectors as "provisionals" — to be affixed to letters as evidence of the prepayment.

These were supplanted for prepayment of postage starting in 1847, eliminating a whole set of independent bookkeeping operations for many post offices and assuring the Federal Government of more efficient collection of postal revenues.

Historically, there were some earlier precedents for the prepayment of postage. For example, in Colonial times citizens of New York (then New Amsterdam) were charged "three stivers" in "wampum" to send a letter abroad. A stiver was roughly equivalent to two cents.

The first U. S. stamps were very much like ordinary issues today. There was a 10 cent issue bearing a likeness of George Washington engraved from the Gilbert Stuart portrait of the first President. This was used on letters going more than 300 miles. Another five cent stamp bearing Benjamin Franklin's picture was issued for letters going shorter distances.

The early official U.S. postage stamps were used on a permissive basis until January, 1, 1856, when prepayment of postage was made compulsory.

During the first year — 1847 — 860,380 postage stamps were manufactured. Today, the total is about 25 billion annually.

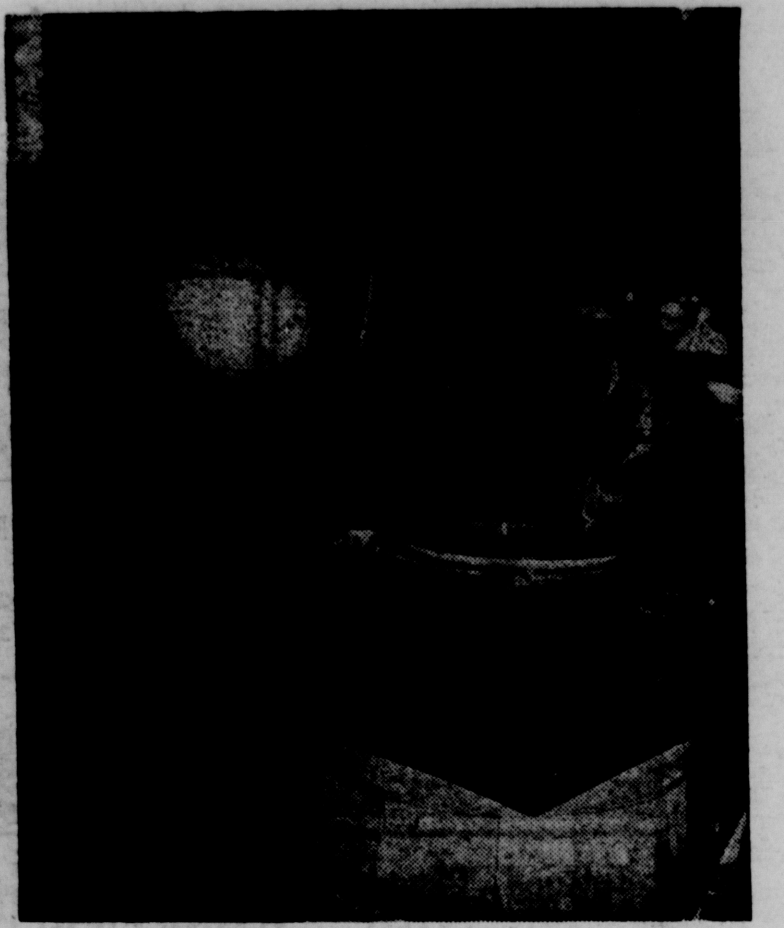
THE SENTRY POST AT STONE RIDGE



1901 VICTOR TALKING MACHINE

Stone Ridge Gift Shop Offers Buys of the 'Sentry'

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

A rose....is a rose ...is a rose! Maybe so, but somehow an ice box is no longer an ice box when Kingston's Slover twins, Bob and Bill, get finished with it. More than likely it will be a very unique home bar. And an old hand-turned wood washing machine, made in the early 1900s, becomes a combination hi-fi and floor lamp, while wagon hubs, farm well pumps and copper tea kettles are transformed into table lamps.

This continual metamorphosis takes place on Route 209 in Stone Ridge where Bob Slover, millwork manager at Miron Building Products, with his wife Mary, and his twin brother Bill, detective sergeant, Kingston Police Department, manage their shop, The Sentry Post, the Home of Early American Gifts and antique articles of all descriptions.

It was in the summer of 1965, that serious consideration was first given to open a gift shop. At that time, Mary and Bob Slover, together with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duffy, also of Kingston, had been reproducing gift items and selling them to shops in this area and in New England. The couples would work on the items throughout the week and deliver them on weekends.

In Country Setting

The desire to open a shop of their own was indomitable, and in the spring of 1966 they started to look for an old barn which could be renovated and opened as a colonial gift shop. However, they searched in vain. But not easily thwarted, they decided to purchase a parcel of land and build their own shop. And here they were indeed fortunate. Approximately two and one-half acres of land bordering on Route 209, two miles south of the village of Stone Ridge, was available to them. The spot had the country setting which they desired as well as ample room for future expansion.

Literally starting from the ground up, a labor of love was begun. By the winter of 1966, after many nights working by floodlights in freezing temperatures, the shop was finally enclosed. And on May 15, 1967, The Sentry Post celebrated its grand opening.

Of salt box design and painted a barn red with white trim, the building's interior is completely finished in Early American decor. Box beamed ceilings and wide planked floors add their own special charm to the host of furnishings housed within the shop. Many of the gift items are displayed on tables constructed of old barrels, while a large pine and mahogany counter holds the 1909 cash register.

In the fall of 1968, co-owner Joseph Duffy was transferred by IBM to a new position in Taiwan, Formosa. Bob and Mary Slover continued the business until the following spring when Bob's twin brother Bill joined as a partner. Up until that time, The Sentry Post only handled reproduction items. But in their travels, the Slovers found scores of unusual items which with a little imagination could be made useful and attractive.

'Gay Nineties Room'

About this time The Sentry Post ran out of space. So...it was back to the hammer and saw as a spanking new addition was constructed to house and display recently found. treasures. The addition was completed in early summer of 1969, and a grand opening took place then for the fascinating "Gay Nineties Room," featuring a complete line of both old and new objets d'art.

Included in the extensive gift line are clocks, mirrors, plateware, candles, candy of yesteryear, towels, iron toys, lamps, beautiful framed pictures, plus a new line of soap and papernote products which harmonizes well with the country store styling. Possessing an active sense of humor, the Slovers tell a tale about the time items were arriving so fast and furiously they were forced to store the articles in the cellar until they found time to peruse their "ways and means." It was then that Bill discovered a note in the basement from a General Electric employee requesting that he at least leave a "path" to the meter.

The large selection of antiques and old articles has been cause for constant comment from their clientele, while the owners, themselves, bask in an added joy as old iron stoves, drop leaf tables, kerosene lamps, desks, glassware and other items are sold and given a new, purposeful life.

Almost all the reproduction gift items—a line covering practically all those advertised in leading home magazines—are ordered directly from the manufacturer in cities all over the U.S. However, the antique items are harder to come by. What many spring housecleaners discard as trash today, could very possibly be treasures of tomorrow in disguise.

Rare Masks

Unusual is the keynote for many of the possessions. Sometime ago when they purchased a box of old glassware and were removing it from the box, they discovered six old and rare theatrical masks. The masks were formed of wire mesh and painted with features of men and women. When worn, the actual face of the wearer cannot be distinguished.

Recently, the Slovers became proud owners of 23 old kerosene lamps which were used in the New York State Prison System before electric lights were introduced. Approximately 28 inches high, they will hold 16 hours of fuel. It is believed that these lanterns are the last of this type remaining.

One of their most prized possessions is a 1901 Victor talking machine. They often play old records on it for the pleasure of their customers. However, Slover added, "No dancing allowed."

No business would be complete without its share of humorous moments. One afternoon a small bird flew into the shop through an open window. After a desperate attempt to fly back out, it rested atop a large framed picture hanging on the wall. About that time, a lady entered the shop and started to browse. She spotted the picture with the bird perched motionless on top and asked if any other pictures were available with a bird-on-top. Making every effort to maintain a tranquil expression, Slover explained they were "very rare." Just then the bird, evidently deciding he had heard enough, took flight and headed back to nature the same way it had entered. When the woman realized what happened, they both had a good laugh.

Of necessity, the success of any business depends upon sales and profit. But in the four short years The Sentry Post has been located in Stone Ridge, the owners have found the friendliness of area residents—who stop in on an almost daily basis for a neighborly chat—to be a "profit" which cannot be measured. Without the interest of these well-wishers who comprise the backbone of the quiet rural community of Stone Ridge, the many hours spent at The Sentry Post would have had far less meaning for the Slover families.

POOR CLOWN — Poignant, sad-faced clowns are one of the major themes of Picasso's work. In 1918, he painted this "Pierrot" using his favorite color, blue, for the background. Picasso will be featured in an evening of Films on Modern Art at New Paltz on July 27.

At Paltz Film Festival:

Movies Are Better Than Ever From Old and New to Silents

What movie buff could bypass this Film Festival? In two parts, it runs the gamut from Jimmy Dean (the "Rebel Without a Cause"), masterpieces of the Underground cinema, Rudolph Valentino, Modern Art, films on Fantasy and Imagery, to silent film classics from D. W. Griffith to Dracula and Jekyll and Hyde.

They'll be reeled off in a summer Film Festival Monday and Wednesday evenings at State University College, New Paltz.

The Monday evening films, featuring old and new, are set from July 20 to Aug. 17. Showings are free and open to the public; will be presented at 7:30 p.m. in Room 102 of the Lecture Center.

Monday Schedule

The Monday offerings are graceful, gory or subterranean as follows:

July 20—Fantasy and Imagery: Kenneth Anger, Scorpio Rising; Meshes of the Afternoon, and Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge.

July 27—Films on Modern Art: Picasso, Moore, Wright, Calder, and Japanese Art.

Aug. 3—Rebel Without a Cause, starring Jimmy Dean.

Aug. 10—Blood and Sand, starring Rudolph Valentino.

Aug. 17—Masterpieces of the Underground Film: "My Garbage," "A Movie," "Jail Keys Made Here," and others.

Wednesday Program

The Wednesday offerings, July 22-Aug. 12, emphasize silent film classics. Beginning at 7 p.m. in Room 105 of the Humanities Building, the unusual series each week features a classic with related short subjects or treatments of the same story. They include:

July 22—"An Evening with Dracula," featuring an abridged version of "Nosferatu," the German expressionist version of "Dracula," with related short subjects.

July 29—"An Evening with Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the John Barrymore version of the classic, with shorter treatments of the well-known Robert Louis Stevenson story.

Aug. 5—"An Evening with the Phantom of the Opera," Lon Chaney's famous version of the classic shocker, with appropriate short subjects.

Aug. 12—D.W. Griffith's "Intolerance," made in 1916 and one of the masterpieces of the silent screen.

The Wednesday movies will be offered by Dr. Warren G. French, visiting professor of English. A collector of films, he will provide notes at each of the four showings. In offering his "Home Movies Away From Home" for area residents, Dr. French says the series is primarily for enjoyment, and to encourage some viewers to start their own collection of 8 mm. film as a hobby.

Wit of Will Rogers Left No Ugly Scars

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Will Rogers was one of those rare individuals who could poke fun at the Establishment of his day without being denounced as a radical or Communist.

Rogers was a semiliterate cowboy from Oklahoma but he was the envy of the intellectuals. He often aimed his barbs at Franklin D. Roosevelt but they left no ugly scars.

This man was so disarming in dispensing his philosophies that he was automatically big boxoffice at the movies. And people stayed at home on Sunday nights to listen to his witty commentaries on radio.

Out of the '30s

Some of the best tapes from those Sunday night radio shows have been recorded on a two-LP album, "The Wit and Wisdom of Will Rogers" (Caedmon TC 2046). Rogers' voice is amazingly clear even though the shows date back to 1935.

He made no attempt to gloss over his poor grammar and twisted syntax because he knew the people loved him as he was.

Of the antiwar demonstrators in those days Rogers said: "The big joke is on them. We ain't got no war."

At that time the United States was deep in the Great Depression and everyone was hoping for a better life. But Rogers also counseled that Americans were lucky.

On Dictators

"Hitler don't collect income taxes but he don't sell nothing," Rogers quipped. "You don't have to pay a poll tax to Mussolini but nobody can vote (in Italy)."

Oldtimers will cherish these recordings. And what Rogers had to say may appeal to the "now" generation.

A psychologist has developed a technique which he says will help persons kick the smoking habit. In "How to Stop Smoking Without Using Willpower" (RCA Victor LSP-4311), Howard Loy gives four lessons and two exercises which are designed to relax the smoker. He opposes using will power because he feels it creates tensions, especially when a person suddenly has a strong desire to smoke. Instead, Loy advocates the use of self-control. Three well-known personalities who were heavy smokers—Carol Burnett, Joanne Woodward and Richard Basehart—said the Loy technique worked for them. They said they were able to quit without gaining weight or wanting to resume smoking. This record is not recommended primarily because all people are not alike but it might be a good investment for smokers who are trying to quit and can't.

At Gaslight Village: Fun for Young & Old

Gaslight Village, the "open door" to the days of the Gay Nineties, has opened for the 1970 summer season in the Adirondacks at Lake George. A great place to spend a day with the kids, this unusual attraction contains all it offered last year in the way of rides and entertainment; boasts brand new features, including a $27,000 paratrooper ride and the Green Monster, a feature designed exclusively for Gaslight Village.

The two new rides offer added fun along with older rides familiar to those who have visited the Village. The Opera House, long a favorite, will continue its entertainment without a break; features an Ice Revue starring one of the foremost ice jumpers in the business. Returning to entertainment with a brand new routine will be Joe Jackson Jr., whose clown antics have been applauded by thousands.

In addition to the ice revue at the Opera House, old time "mellerdramas" are being continued, along with silent movies. Both these entertainments offer a visual taste of the past; have proved tremendously popular with the public as Gaslight Village.

The Memory Lane attraction is featuring new displays; ventriloquist Bob Carroll is delighting young and old alike; Capt. Schreiber and his trained chimpanzees come up with a remarkable act.

So take the kids up to Gaslight Village at Lake George some Saturday or Sunday. You'll find it gleaming from more than 500 gallons of new paint on buildings and attractions, and you'll see a fleet of antique cars rounding out the entire picture and adding their own motif to the general nostalgic-but-fun atmosphere of the Gay Nineties.

POTPOURRI

BY JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Tuesday night is Ladies Night each week at Magoo's in Wappingers Falls which, translated, means free smorgasbord, champagne for the ladies, and Limbo contest with gifts for winners. And if that's not enough, a professional band picks tunes geared to particular clientele of-the-night while psychedelirious lights play hopscotch on dancers, casting shadows on purple floor-to-ceiling wall screen.

'Tho not exactly cave-like there ARE stone walls and maxi darkness And for those so inclined there's char-broiled steak or lobster tails, specially prepared by chef, Carlos Scissura.....and, we almost forgot, a FEMALE bartender! (Now we ask you—what else is there?) And please don't knock-the-frock; these are the times of "viva equality."

* * *

This one's too-good-to-keep within the confines of 3 Broadway. Seems Freeman County Editor Al Cawein eats lunch each day at Ambrose's. While there he orders grilled cheese sandwich which he brings back to office for Managing Editor Pete Barrecchia. Last week Al had an extra stop to make in Freeman building and left Pete's grilled cheese on table. When he returned he picked up bag and started for Editorial Office. Just as he reached Pete's desk he suddenly realized he was carrying wrong bag. "Nuts," Al shouted, "I picked up wrong lunch at Ambrose's. I'll have to go back." Meanwhile Assistant City Editor Ed Palladino went to lunch a bit later than usual that day and was really looking forward to his two thick salami sandwiches which he'd brought from home. But, lo and behold, when Ed went to lunchroom ....you guessed it....HIS lunch was gone and in its place was a grilled cheese sandwich.

Just about now Al arrived the second time with another grilled cheese, noting as how Ambrose boys were in a quandary 'cause they couldn't dig where those two thick salami sandwiches came from. To make a bad plight worse, Ed loathes grilled cheese. (However, Ambrose brothers enjoyed the salami!) The whole snafu was enough to give a hardboiled Assistant City Editor heartburn.

P.S. Ed was so unglued, he's takin' to chewing bubble gum.

* * *

The only ones NOT wilted at Soap Box Derby Queen competition last Friday night in KHS blistering-hot auditorium were contestants, themselves. Ah, youth, sweet youth! Even flower-garden-fresh roses each young lassie carried looked like instant-hot house by 9 o'clock.....Tickled to hear Joe Hudela—one of Kingston's top notch tailors and avid coin collector—scheduled to move into store just vacated by Leo Holtz' Smart Shop. We think that'll keep it a "smart" shop.

* * *

Regarding last week's City Beat column 'bout Fireman's Ball at Granit: Dear Hugh, it's OK to borrow-our-diction once in a while (we're flattered) but next time PLEASE spell our name right. It's P-o-t-p-o-u-r-r-i! Speakin' of Ball, understand Mayor Koenig had to sit on dais as-per-usual, so Marilyn entered on arm of Bob Gallo. Naturally during introductions, emcee noted Marilyn Koenig and Bob Gallo as "Mr. and Mrs." Poor devil, it could happen to anyone!

A LIVING LEGEND is Buddy Rich. Along with others from the Big Band Era, he brought back nostalgic memories on "Happy Days," the new Thursday night summer replacement show on CBS-TV, when it debuted recently. Program features the big bands and those great radio actors, Bob and Ray, who wrote 30 comedy spots for the series; portray themselves as veteran radio-actors — spoofing old daytime radio dramas.

'Photographic Essay' By Mark Baczynsky

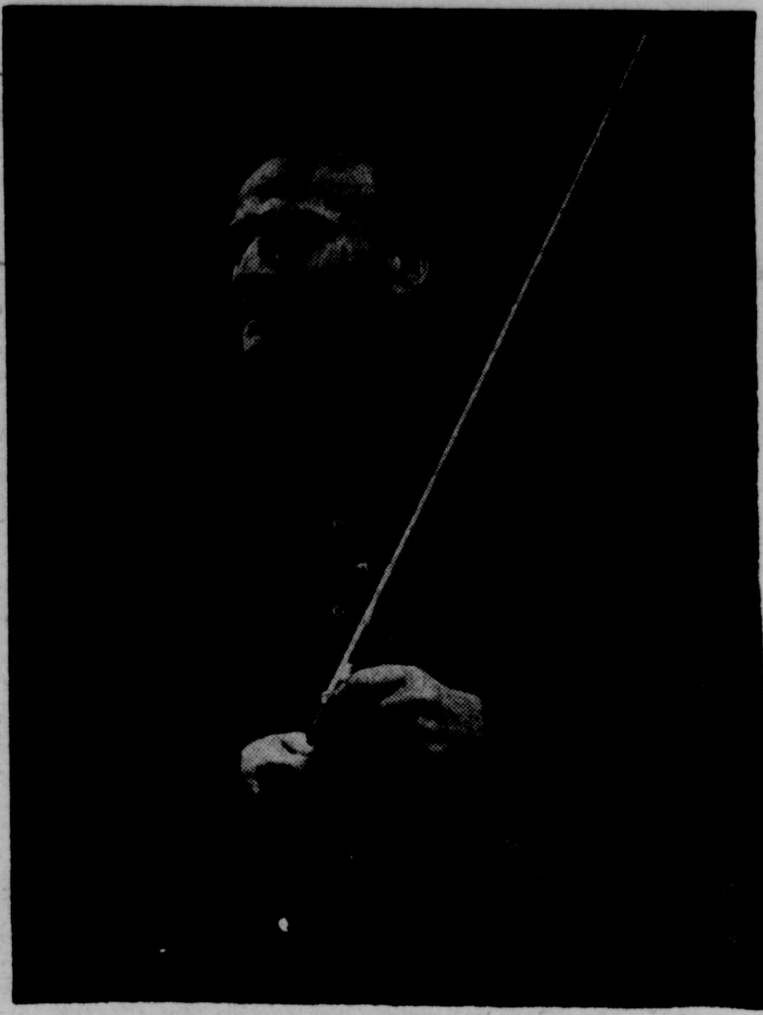
The Artcraft Visual Center, 694 Broadway, is featuring a "photographic essay" on the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra in action. The exhibition is open now and will continue through July 31. The photographs comprising this exhibition are the work of Mark Baczynsky, orchestra director at Kingstn High School.

Baczynsky holds a Bachelor of Music Education degree from Murray State University and a Master of Music degree from the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester. He is a member of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra and is also a composer whose most recent work, "Design for Orchestra," was performed by that orchestra in 1968.

Apart from his many musical activities. Baczynsky has been a free-lance photographer for many years. His work is very highly regarded by the internationally known musicians who have appeared with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic many of whom have used his photographs for publicity purposes. From his seat at the first desk of the viola section, he has had the opportunity to be at close range to such well-known musical figures as Yehudi Menuhin, Aaron Copland, Rudolf Serkin, Roberta Peters, Isaac Stern, and Leonard Rose.

Most of his photographs were taken during rehearsals and concerts, using available light only; they cover a 10 year span, from 1960 to 1970, of the HVPO activities. His highly sensitive and perceptive photographs reflect his philosophy, which is "to capture the mood and personality of the artist in a spontaneous, unposed situation."

The public is invited to visit the Visual Center this month to see this outstanding exhibition of photographic art. All photographs on view will be available for purchase.



YEHUDI MENUHIN, one of the internationally known musicians photographed by Kingston High School orchestra director, Mark Baczynsky, and included in his "photographic essay" exhibition now on view at Artcraft Visual Center.

There'll Be Music On This Fair's Air

Woodstock's durable Library Fair long ago established itself as THE place for serious bargain searching and frivolous wandering . . a once a year haven for people who like "old things."

Anything is likely to turn up and, this year, major attractions will include rare books, the lilting folksinging of Sonia Malkine, and spirited organ music by Tommy Wayne.

When the fair holds forth on Friday, July 24, thousands of books will be up for bids, along with glassware, jewelry, clothing, art nouveau objects and oddities of all types. Books of many kinds have come in from all over the area and, outstanding among them, will be the private library of Bruce Herrick, whose affiliation with the Woodstock Library was part of its early history.

Promised, too, are many valuable art books, selected magazines, philosophy, poetry and history tomes, crates of fiction and a wide range of attractive book sets.

Browsers and bargain hunters will find the day made more pleasant because of the French and English songs of Sonia Malkine. A welcome addition to the fair, she has performed widely at coffee houses, concerts, clubs and colleges across the U.S.

On hand, too, will be Tommy Wayne, accomplished concert organist, who'll provide a musical background by playing requests for old-time favorites.

FRENCH FOLK SONGSTRESS Sonia Malkine brings her lute and a new group accompaniment to the Woodstock Library Fair on July 24.

As It was Done in General George's Day

MILITARY DRILL in Revolutionary uniforms will be the order of the day at the New Windsor Cantonment in Vails Gate near Bear Mountain tomorrow, July 19. The Cantonment, the last winter encampment of General George Washington's Northern Continental Army 1782-1783, will be hosting the Fourth Annual School of the Continental Soldier, sponsored by the Brigade of the American Revolution. Volunteer units from all over the east will present a full program of lectures, drill and parade on Sunday. Lecture highlights include "Events and Personalities of the American Revolution," "Revolutionary War Chaplains," "Loyalist Corps," and "Military Medicine." If you can't drive down tomorrow, visit the Cantonment another day. It's open to the public from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays and Tuesdays. Picnic areas and a refreshment stand are offered on the grounds.

FRONTIER
TOWN

FRONTIER TOWN—Smokey Bear's cousin greets visitors to Frontier Town in the Adirondack Mountains at exit 29 on the New York Northway. Now in its 18th year, Frontier Town has added more new attractions to the ever-popular family fun spot. Lovers of western lore come back year after year to enjoy the day-long action created by living, legendary characters from America's early western past. Infamous outlaws, fabled marshalls, military and folk heros all populate the streets and "do their own thing" as recorded in the pages of history. There are three-action-packed rodeos daily and there are scores of tame animals for those who like things a little calmer.

Garden Day

The Lake and Valley Garden club of Cooperstown last week sponsored "A Garden Day at Mohican Farm," featuring a flower and horticulture specimen show; a tour of the famous garden; demonstrations of potting, planting and flower arranging; and exhibits relative to conservation and state parks. A snack bar for lunch and tea was available throughout the hours of the show.

Mohican Farm, situated at the north end of Otsego Lake, three miles south of Springfield Center, on Route 80, is a beautiful house with spacious grounds and a lovely garden, and through the generosity of the Clark Foundation was a superb setting for the show and exhibits.

Milton Berle has signed with Screen Gems for four one-hour variety programs. The outlet for the comedian's shows has not been determined.

Chairlift Rides Open at Ski Centers

Summertime chairlift rides to high places are available this season at three ski centers operated by the New York State Conservation Department.

Aerial lifts at Whiteface in the Adirondacks and at Belleayre in the Catskills opened for the season on June 27 for daily operation through Labor Day, they will carry passengers on weekends through the fall foliage season.

Gore Mountain Ski Center's 2.1-mile gondola lift, the only facility of its type in New York State, commenced operations July 1 on a daily-except-Monday basis. From Labor Day through the season of the flaming leaves, the gondola will operate only on weekends.

At Whiteface, the ride involves two lifts—the first to mid-station of the No. 1 double chair lift, and the second from that point to the top of 3,640 foot Little Whiteface on double chairlift No.2. Spectacular views of the valley of the West Branch of the Ausable River are seen from the upper lift.

Gore's gondola lift will be in summer operation for the first time.

Four-passenger cars make the trip from the base lodge area to the 3,600-foot summit of Gore Mountain in a little more than 15 minutes. Splendid panoramas of the Adirondack high peak region, the Champlain Valley and the Hudson Valley are visible from the top.

Belleayre's chair lift takes the visitor to the highest point thus attainable in the Catskills an elevation of 3,325 feet. From the Belleayre summit, the Rip Van Winkle country unfolds before the eyes, its green carpet and sparkling waters.

Belleayre is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. At Whiteface, the chair lifts operate from 9:30 to 5:30; and at Gore, the gondola opens at 9 a.m. and closes 3:45 p.m.

Kingston Resident In Summer Theatre

William Parker, a Kingston resident, is one of 13 Ithaca College students who have been selected to participate in summer theater on Martha's Vineyard this summer.

The Vineyard Players were organized in the summer of 1966 and have represented Ithaca College in Oak Bluffs, Mass. for the last five summer seasons.

Parker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Coles of Kingston, earned his BFA degree in drama from Ithaca College in May. This is his second season on Martha's Vineyard where he gave nine performances last year in "A Thousand Clowns" and "Carnival".

In the opening show of the second year of the new Performing Arts Building on the Ithaca College campus in upstate New York, Parker tackled the title role in "Caligula". He has also performed in "Brecht on Brecht", "Night of the Iguana" and "The Miser" as well as the world premiere of "The Court is Naked".

Parker is also a member of the Vergiu Cornea Dance Company at Ithaca College.

He will have roles this summer in the Vineyard productions of "Man of La Mancha", "The Show-Off", "Tartuffe", "Enter Laughing", "Your Own Thing" and "Once Upon a Mattress".
